WAR DECLARED!

AUSTRIA HURLS ARMY INTO SERVIA

10 O'CLOCK EDITION

BOSTON AMERICAN EXTRA

VOL. 11—No. 128. BOSTON, TUESDAY, JULY 28, 1914. Registered in U. S. Patent Office. PRICE ONE CENT.

THE TEUTONIC WAR LORDS

Emperor Franz Joseph today declared war on Servia. His action followed intimations that Emperor William of Germany would support him. The two now stand shoulder to shoulder as Teutons against the Slav on the brink of the greatest war in the world's history.

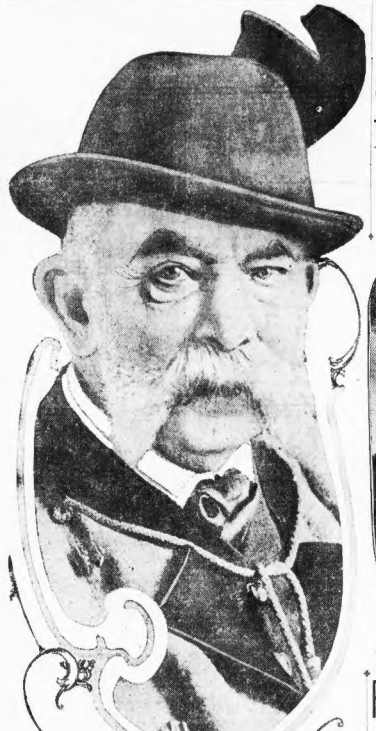
EUROPE AFLAME

VIENNA July 28.—Austria today declared war against Servia. Official notification was sent to Belgrade for transmission to the Servian government.

This action was taken as soon as the Austro-Hungarian government was notified that Germany had refused to become a party to any conference having for its aim the mediation of the differences between Servia and Austria.

The government gave formal notice through the British ambassador here that it would refuse to halt hostilities pending the result of such a conference, and shortly afterwards issued a declaration of war.

It is probable that at the same time war was declared the Austrian army was hurled into Servia.



THE WEATHER

Rain this afternoon and probably tonight; Wednesday fair; fresh northeast winds.

Sun rises 4:31, sets 7:09.
Moon sets 9:53 p. m.
High tide 3 a. m., 3:30 p. m.

POSTPONE STRUGGLE FOR DUDDY

The question of extraditing Joseph Duddy to West Virginia is to hold over until the present murder indictment against him in Massachusetts is disposed of. Duddy is the Pittsburg youth who was with "Diamond Chip" Robinson when Police Inspector Thomas J. Norton was fatally shot. Duddy was indicted with Robinson for the murder of Norton.

The West Virginia authorities have asked that he be extradited to that State on the ground that he is a fugitive from justice. They accuse him of the grand larceny of $5,000 worth of jewelry from the store of H. J. Homrich of Huntington, W. Va., on March 21 last.

At an extradition hearing before Assistant Attorney-General Leon Gayes at the State House today, counsel for Duddy and for West Virginia and the Boston police agreed that the extradition matter could wait until the scheduled trial for murder here. Captain Armstrong of police headquarters said that the trial may be set for August 15.

Duddy's counsel maintained that Duddy was never in West Virginia, that he is not a fugitive from justice and that the alleged crime is not properly charged in the requisition.

Judge Samuel R. Cutler, for Duddy, said that he could prove that Duddy was never in West Virginia. He argued that the warrant for Duddy's arrest was signed merely by a justice of the peace, and not by a higher court justice, and that there is no West Virginia indictment out against Duddy.

Attorney Weeks, for Duddy, asked that the requisition matter be left untouched until after the Massachusetts case be disposed of, as an open requisition hearing might tend to prejudice Duddy's chances at the Boston trial. Mr. Weeks also asked the right to get witnesses from Toledo, New Jersey and Pittsburgh to show that Duddy was not in West Virginia at the time of the Huntington larceny.

H. W. James, for Duddy, argued that the murder indictment takes precedence over a requisition on a lesser charge.

Panic in Wheat Pit with News of War; Prices Soar

NEW YORK, July 28.—Following the announcement that Austria had declared war on Servia, the wheat market became panic-stricken. It was impossible to follow the transactions, so enormous was the business. Within a few minutes prices for wheat had jumped up six cents a bushel.

CHICAGO, July 28.—The receipt of news that Austria had declared war caused a sensation on the Board of Trade shortly before noon and September wheat jumped up four cents from the opening price. Immense trade was on, with individual operations lost sight of. Selling pressure was limited, coming mainly from scattered longs.

BULLETINS

ST. PETERSBURG, July 28.—All Russian frontier posts have been strengthened, 80,000 men having been distributed along the German border alone. The only trains running in western Russia today are those carrying army supplies from the interior. Detachments of troops have been stationed at all bridges and sappers are held in readiness for quick service in case any of the structures are blown up.

LONDON, July 28.—A press dispatch from Semlin, just across the Danube from Belgrade, states that Servia has decided to grant all the demands made by Austria. As the Servian government is now established at Nish, this report failed to get general credence.

MANCHESTER, July 28.—M. Dumoa, Austro-Hungarian Ambassador to the United States, today cancelled his reservations for a trip to Europe. He had expected to sail Saturday.

LIEGE, Belgium, July 28.—The Journal du People states that the railroad bridge over the River Meuse has been mined. Destruction of this bridge would hamper an invasion of Belgium by German troops.

KIEL, Germany, July 28.—There is a financial panic here and in other towns in this district. Runs have started on the savings banks.

BULLETINS

NISH, Servia, July 28.—Austrian troops seized the Servian steamer eligrad at Orchava today and detained the passengers. The Servian flag was torn down and the Austrian banner hoisted in its stead.

BUCHAREST, Roumania, July 28.—Germany today asked definite assurances from Roumania as to the attitude of the government toward Austria and Servia. The request was undoubtedly inspired by Austria, which wishes to be assured that Servia's neighbors will not unite against the dual monarchy.

BRUSSELS, July 28.—Mobilization of the Belgian army began today. The government military depots will remain open night and day until all the troops are equipped for warfare.

KARLSBAD, Bohemia, July 28.—The Governor of Karlsbad issued a proclamation today stating that the Austrian government had mobilized eight army corps. He notified all reservists to rejoin their regiments within twenty-four hours.

PORTSMOUTH, Eng., July 28.—On orders received from the British admiralty armed guards were placed around the magazines in the naval arsenal today. Commanders of the torpedo and submarine flotillas here have been instructed to be in readiness for an immediate call.

KIEL, Germany, July 28.—There is a financial panic here and in other towns in this district. Runs have started on the savings banks.

BERLIN, July 28.—The German battleships, cruisers and torpedo boats were ordered today to concentrate at Wilhelmhaven. That station is a strategic point for opposing any attack by a British fleet.

LATEST IMPROVEMENTS

In high-class apartments are installed in houses listed in the "Apartments to Let" Columns of the Boston AMERICAN.

Great Powers Rush War Preparations

LONDON, July 28.—Advices today from all the continental capitals indicate that Europe is preparing for one of the greatest wars of modern times.

Austria has actuallly declared war on Servia. King Peter defies Vienna, and is prepared to meet the enemy.

Russia is strengthening her army on the German frontier, adding 80,000 men to her present forces there.

Germany has rejected Great Britain's plea for a mediation conference, and has declared a "hands off" policy. The German populace is eager for war.

The French war council has arranged for an immediate mobilization of the armies of the Republic.

Great naval activity on the part of all the powers continues.

AUSTRIA CAPTURES TWO SERVIAN SHIPS

VIENNA, July 28.—Austro-Hungarian patrol boats captured two Servian ships carrying arms and ammunition near Kocevar today, according to a dispatch received here.

Though there has been no formal declaration of war there is no doubt here that hostilities have opened between Servia and Austria.

Servian troops are reported to have been defeated by invading Austrians who entered the Serbs' kingdom near Mitrovieza, about fifty miles west of Belgrade.

FRANCE PREPARES BIG WAR MOVEMENT

PARIS, July 28.—Arrangements were made at a "war council" today for mobilization of the French army, if this proves

RESENTMENT OVER DUBLIN BATTLE GROWS

DUBLIN, July 28.—Defying the government's prohibition of parades by armed civilians, Nationalist volunteers marched through the streets today. Many of them carried rifles supposed to be part of the consignment landed at Howth on Sunday.

Every hour is increasing the bitterness against the troops who fired on an attacking mob Sunday, killing three and wounding many.

Though it was announced in London last night that Sir John Ross, the chief police commissioner, had resigned, he was in his office today. This increased the tension here, as the general public holds him responsible for calling out the troops.

During the night crowds singing Irish national songs paraded about the barracks where the King's Own Scottish Borderers are confined, jeering the soldiers and daring them to "come out and fight with men."

Oswald Kelly Is Out for the House

Oswald Kelly of No. 682 Bennington street, East Boston, today announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for the House of Representatives in Ward 1.

$500,000 Damage in Ottawa Lumber Fire

OTTAWA, Ont., July 28.—Fire, which broke out last night in the Gilmour & Hughson lumber yard was still burning fiercely today. The loss is estimated at $500,000. Seven million feet of lumber was destroyed.

"Speck" White, Old Printer, Dead at 71

NEW HAVEN, Ct., July 28.—Arthur "Speck" White, a travelling printer, known in newspaper offices throughout the East for many years, is dead at the Springside Home in this city, aged seventy-one.

Mrs. Astor Defeats Miss Helen Draper

BAR HARBOR, Me., July 28.—Miss Helen Draper of Boston was defeated in the first round of the women's tennis tournament by Mrs. John Jacob Astor in two straight sets, 6—1, 6—1. Mrs. Astor's sister, Miss Katherine Force, playing in the opposite court, also won, defeating Miss Augusta McCagg.

CAILLAUX TRIAL RIOT 5 ARRESTED

PARIS, July 28.—Great crowds besieged the Palace of Justice today, men and women fighting for an opportunity to witness the final scenes in the dramatic trial of Mme. Henriette Caillaux for the murder of Gaston Calmette, editor of Le Figaro.

Armed gendarmes were stationed at the doors were rushed several times by the frenzied spectators, but succeeded in holding them back. Scores came to the building during the night and camped there in discomfort, but happy in having forestalled possible rivals.

WILL KNOW FATE TONIGHT.

The fate of Mme. Caillaux will be known before night. Setting on the outcome was general today. It was influenced greatly by the course her husband, ex-Premier Joseph Caillaux, had followed during the trial. The prevailing belief was because of his injection of political issues into the trial, the defendant could hope for nothing better than a verdict of "murder with extenuating circumstances."

Such a verdict would render her liable to two years imprisonment. This would be materially lessened by the provisions of the first offenders' act.

A small minority of the betters were willing to wager that she would be acquitted, but their money was eagerly snapped up.

WOMEN CRUSHED.

There were fully 1,000 women in the courtroom when the proceedings began. The rush for seats caused a riot in which many of the women were crushed and fainted. The newspaper correspondents were thrust away from the seats reserved for them and made a protest to the court. Some got their seats back, but many had to stand.

A free fight between several of the spectators developed in the rear of the room and gendarmes had to be called to subdue the rioters. Five were arrested. The first speaker was M. Sellenzam, representing the Calmette family.

His address was a dull flowery discourse devoted to an attack on M. Caillaux and defense of the slain editor. He declared that apart from the money left to Calmette by M. Chouchard and Mme. Hourein, the editor accumulated only $100,000 during his lifetime.

"How many millions must one accuire to be allowed to murder a man with impunity?" he cried dramatically.

PRISONER FAINTS.

Mme. Caillaux fainted while M. Chenu was asking for her conviction. She was carried from the court and the session was suspended while she received medical attention. Her collapse came when Chenu pictured her as a cold-blooded assassin and demanded a verdict of guilty and death on the guillotine as the penalty.

"Vote" Talk on State Street.

Miss Portia Willis of New York will make a plea for suffrage at a meeting today in front of the merchants' Exchange in State street.

WILLIAM DE BAPTISTE, seven-year-old Hyde Park boy, drowned in the Neponset River.

Hyde Park Boy Is Found Drowned

The body of William DeBaptiste, seven years, of No. 16 Madison street, Hyde Park, was found today by Louis Raph, who was dragging the Neponset river with a garden rake. It was found in about seven feet of water, not far away from the boy's home. Since last evening the boy had been missing, when he went out to play. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Antonio DeBaptiste.

Boston Hibernians Pledge Their Support

The following cablegram has been sent by the members of Division 71, A. O. H., of Boston:

Hon. Joseph Devlin, House of Commons, London, England:

Division 71, A. O. H., Boston, Mass., extends physical and financial support in fight for the undivided Irish nation," shocked at Dublin outrage.

Says Coal Operator Fancies Persecution

WASHINGTON, July 28.—President Fairfax Harrison of the Southern Railway told the Senate committee investigating Southern coal traffic that, in his opinion, H. L. Dulaney, the independent coal operator of Bristol, Va., whose charges have formed the basis of the inquiry, "was suffering from what is known as delusion of persecution."

Cloudburst Kills Two.

TELLURIDE, Col., July 28.— Two persons were drowned, fifty families were rendered homeless and fifteen business blocks were partially wrecked when a cloudburst broke a dam and flooded the town. The damage was $150,000.

CUPS, BUT NO WATER ON THE B. & M. LOCALS

The good old Boston & Maine will have its little joke. Now the joke is at the expense of thirsty folk who commute on local trains. This is the story:

In 1911 the Massachusetts Legislature passed two measures. One provided "That individual drinking cups must be provided on all trains." The other said "That drinking water must be supplied on all trains running thirty miles or more."

"Aha!" quoth the Boston & Maine—under New Haven management—"Here's our chance for a loaf."

Thereupon drinking water was abolished on all commuting trains which run less than thirty miles. You can tell whether a car has water aboard or not by a red spot painted on the step—so that the men whose work it is to fill the cars can spot them easily.

But—and here's the joke—get ready to laugh. On trains running less than thirty miles, though water need not be supplied, drinking cups must be. Therefore one may see, in the course of a ride in four hitches, say, many a lady or gentleman or child step up to the drinking cup rack, draw out a cup, confidently apply it to the faucet and press the button.

But the water does not come. If the thirsty one is a lady, she says "Goodness." If a gentleman, he says something we will not mention. If a child, the child runs whimpering to mother in the seat half way back in the air and begs for water.

The Boston & Maine is a great old practical joker.

Bride Who Eloped Says She Proposed

NEWPORT, R. I., July 28.—Mrs. John W. Lucas of Skowhegan, Me., who eloped with the wireless operator at the Naval Radio Station, on returning from her honeymoon today declared she and not the one who proposed. "Don't blame John; I proposed that we elope, the whole affair was my doing," she says. Mrs. Lucas is nineteen.

U.S. Gets Evidence of Private Parks' Fate

VERA CRUZ, July 28.—Evidence of the fate of Private Samuel Parks of the Twenty-eighth Infantry, who was shot to death by a Mexican outpost here, reached Brigadier-General Funston, when the aluminum tag of identification which Parks wore when he wandered out of the American lines was forwarded by mail from Mexico City.

Trixie Friganza Seeks a Divorce

CHICAGO, July 28.—Suit for divorce has been filed by Mrs. Trixie Goettler, known on the stage as Trixie Friganza, against Charles A. Goettler, charging cruelty and non-support. She says he refused to work and she had to pay his debts.

Brother Is Dying, Hold Portland Man

PORTLAND, Me., July 28.—With a bullet wound above his heart, Patrick J. Mulkern made this death bed statement in the Maine General Hospital: "If I don't pull through see to it that my brother Mike gets life for this." He was found in an Indian street stable and his brother held.

ARREST BARES SECRET OF LOW COST OF WINE

Efficiency methods of Greater Boston Italians to keep down the high cost of wining, were brought to light today when the case of Raphael Naclerio, a Quincy expressman, was heard in Newton District Court. Naclerio pleaded guilty to illegal transportation of liquor, having no license, but he appealed from the $50 fine imposed and furnished $500 bonds for his appearance in the higher court.

Naclerio was arrested in Newton last night as he was driving a motor truck laden with three barrels. The police say these barrels contained 285 gallons of wine, consigned to Italians in the Nonantum section of Newton, also that Naclerio had already delivered four barrels.

Naclerio is said to have told the police that many Italian families of the Metropolitan District have a wine-buying club, whose headquarters are in Quincy. They club together to buy wine by the carload lot from California at wholesale rates. This wine is sent on in barrels to Quincy, where it is unloaded for distribution to the consignees.

No Wine Order Gets Daniels in Trouble

WASHINGTON, July 28.—Secretary Daniels' famous order abolishing the wine mess has brought him trouble. Several of the States for which new battleships are to be named have asked him if they shall include punch bowls in the silver they will present to the battleship.

The Secretary now has to decide. "What good is a punch bowl without punch?" "Does a battleship need a punchless punch bowl?" "Would it not be better to substitute a teapot or grape juice decanter?"

Whitman Would Not Let T. R. Dictate

NEW YORK, July 28.—District Attorney Whitman will file his petition for the gubernatorial nomination at the Republican primary and none other. Mr. Whitman says doubtless he could have had the support of Colonel Roosevelt if he had been willing to submit to Colonel Roosevelt's dictation.

Rockland Opposes New Police Station

Although Dr. C. E. Knight of the Rockland Board of Health declares that the present lockup in Rockland is not fit for occupancy the citizens of Rockland at a special town meeting refused to vote a new police station. The old lockup has been condemned by the State Board of Health.

Rush of Work in Big St. Louis Mills

ST. LOUIS, July 28.—All the big plants on the east side will be running full force next week. The Granite City Rolling Mills reopened after the Summer layoff, earlier than ever before. Additional departments of the National Enameling and Stamping Company will reopen Monday, the plant Products Refining Co., owned by John D. Rockefeller, will open Monday also. All the steel mills are running now.

4 Hurt in Worcester Automobile Upset

WORCESTER, July 28.—Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Press of No. 92 Providence street were slightly injured, Herbert Finn, a newsboy, suffered a fracture of the spine, and Abraham McKenzie of Shrewsbury, N. H., may lose the use of the brain as the result of their automobile upsetting on the newly-oiled road near the Easton line.

141,624 TOTAL ATTENDANCE OF CITY SCHOOLS

Superintendent Dyer of the Boston public schools announced today there were during the year closing June, 1914, in the day and night schools, 141,624 pupils.

This number is greater by 5,895 than the number of pupils during the preceding school year.

In the day schools there were 69,542 boys and 58,164 girls, an increase of 1,830 boys and 1,371 girls. There were sixteen less pupils in the Normal school and 146 less pupils in the kindergartens, but the high and Latin schools gained 754, the elementary grades 2,452 and the special schools 125.

The number of graduates in June, 3,701, was 562 greater than a year ago.

Wilson Puts Scribes in "Fiction" Club

WASHINGTON, July 28.—The White House "Fiction" Club has been founded by President Wilson. While it resembles in some ways the famous Roosevelt "Amazing Club," the membership seems destined to be restricted to newspaper correspondents whose stories have put the President in an unwelcome light.

New Way to Treat the Hair

The air is full of floating dust, dirt and disease germs, which settle upon the hair.

There is a natural oil on the head that holds the dust fast, and in a short time you have dandruff, itching scalp and falling hair.

The pores in the scalp are stopped up, the hair roots get no nourishment, and then the hair begins to fall out. Cleanliness is the one thing needed, and Birt's Head Wash is the ideal shampoo to bring it about. Its use will put the hair and scalp in a healthy, natural condition, so that faded, lifeless hair may resume its natural color and vigor.

Birt's Head Wash is made of Refined Creamy Soap, Cochin Cocoanut Oil, White of Eggs, Glycerin and Salicylic Acid. There are no better things than these known for cleansing the hair and scalp, and doctors will tell you so if you ask them.

THINK NURSE WAS VICTIM OF HYPNOTIST

Ada Taylor, whose death in the surf at Winthrop, is now a thirteen-day mystery, is thought to have been the victim of a hypnotic tyrant whom she alternately loved and loathed.

Much has cropped out to substantiate the theory that the unfortunate nurse was entirely at the mercy of some man who at times exercised an occult power over her. It is said that it was to escape this man's subtleties she was often forced to conceal her identity and place of employment.

Certain it is that she had left several places just as clandestinely as she did the home of the Cedars on Shirley street, Winthrop, and had even taken greater precautions to cover her tracks, according to evidence unearthed yesterday.

Why all this dread and subterfuge? What was the secret she carried to her grave.

These are the questions that have foiled the Metropolitan Park police to demand an inquest. There are so many baffling phases which spring directly from the nurse's secret that the park authorities, whose duty it is to clear up such tragedy, desire the fullest kind of an inquiry.

INQUEST SOON.

The inquest will be held before Judge Joseph H. Barnes in the East Boston Court tomorrow or Thursday. Many witnesses will be summoned.

Her secret was apparently so vital that Ada Taylor did not dare whisper it to the dearest relative or friend. It was a secret so awesome and overpowering that it actually changed the trend of her whole life and turned happiness to misery.

That secret undermined her health. It robbed her of a nature that was naturally gay and buoyant. At times her fear approached hysteria.

So positive are the police that a man darkened the recent years of Ada Taylor's life that they have hunted high and low for days to get him whom they think is a secret husband. They haven't the slightest doubt that this man held a hypnotic power over the girl.

HUNT ELUSIVE MAN.

They say they have come close to his trail several times only to find he had just flitted away. They have been told by reliable witnesses that this man has been in Boston since the young woman met her death at Ocean Spray.

They say if he didn't have something to fear and conceal he would come to them voluntarily. They want to ask about the reported marriage and the quarrel, the dread shade of violence and death, the reason why he kept demanding her earnings.

SUES FOR BRIDE WHO THOUGHT WEDDING JOKE

Harry Adams, twenty-seven, of Fourth street, South Boston, has engaged counsel to secure his bride, Bertha Williams, eighteen, of No. 24 Thomas Park, South Boston, who told her parents she thought the wedding ceremony a joke.

The night before the Fourth Adams took the girl for a walk and visited the office of a justice of the peace in the South End, where they were married.

When Mr. and Mrs. Williams were told of their daughter's marriage to Adams they refused to let her live with him and notified the police, who told the mother to keep her daughter at home. As a result, Adams has been unable to obtain his wife and in consequence suffers anguish, he says.

Mrs. Williams said: "My daughter is married and I propose to have the marriage annulled. I am at present playing a waiting game. I am going to try to proceed criminally against him."

Scotch Meet Entries Will Close Tonight

No entry mailed after midnight for the open events at the Scotch picnic Saturday will be accepted by the committee. The handicapping will be done tomorrow and the marks announced Thursday. Positively no athlete will receive a handicap on the grounds on day of the games.

The events for the professionals will start promptly after the last amateur event has been concluded and the entries will be sent on their marks by the starter, who has agreed to act as starter. In this event there will be at least ten starters including Quaid, Jimmy Duffy, A. E. Wood, Tod Crooks and Fitzgerald of Australia.

Auto Knocks Five Out of Carriage

Five persons were badly shaken up when an automobile owned by the H. P. Hood Company of No. 494 Rutherford avenue, Charlestown, and operated by M. L. Brazell of North Wilmington, collided with a carriage on Main street, Stoneham, near the Reading line today. The occupants of the carriage were A. W. Ellis, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Bancroft and Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Mercier, of Stoneham. All were thrown to the ground and sustained slight bruises.

Norwood Society Outing Saturday

Plans have been perfected by the two St. Catherine's Total Abstinence Societies of Norwood for an outing and field day in Massapoag Grove, Sharon, next Saturday. There will be dancing afternoon and evening. Sports will be held for both sexes.

MRS. ATKINS, IN $100,000 CASE, ODDLY MISSING

Mrs. Martha Atkins of Wellesley, in whose estate conservators allege a shortage of $100,000, has been missing since July 1 from White Oak, Ga., according to advices from the South which reached here today. Her flight is declared to have followed the receipt of several mysterious letters from Boston.

The report of Mrs. Atkins' disappearance closely follows the escape of Mrs. Caroline L. Hayes from the Boston Insane Hospital. Both women are being sued for insanity.

Mrs. Atkins is the wife of Arthur M. Atkins, an automobile dealer. She is wealthy in her own right, but for years is alleged to have been under the influence of Mrs. Hayes. It was as the result of this alleged influence that two conservators were appointed to care for her estate. Following their appointment a mysterious shortage of $100,000 in bonds, jewelry, personal property, bonds and real estate was discovered.

Mrs. Hayes is the wife of Dr. John J. Hayes of No. 546 Columbus avenue.

Mrs. Marie Maggio, seventy, No. 7 West street, Malden, is cutting a third set of teeth. Dr. Charles D. McCarthy of Malden has examined her and finds one tooth has come through, also that upper and lower sets have formed and probably will be out within a few days.

PROBE PAST OF BRIDE HELD AS HORSE STEALER

MANSFIELD, July 28.—Chief of Police Nelson today questioned Mrs. Mabel Robinson, 2d, of Canaan, N. H., the bride of a month, held as a horse thief, in a further attempt to learn more of her past.

Chief Nelson found today that the buggy in which Mrs. Robinson was riding belongs to Barnard Skinner of this town. The buggy was stolen from Mr. Skinner's barn, which is on the direct road to West Mansfield, where the horse belonging to the Mansfield Milling Company was stolen.

Mrs. Robinson claims she was forced by her husband to lead the life of a tramp, but does not blame him and will tell nothing to give a clue to his whereabouts.

Her own story that she is the daughter of a wealthy farmer still lacks confirmation.

CORONER PUTS DEATH BLAME ON MRS. ANGLE

BRIDGEPORT, Ct., July 28.—Coroner John J. Phelan today filed his report in the death of Waldo Ballou, the prominent Stamford business man and political leader, in which he finds that Ballou came to his death as a result of the criminal act of Helen M. Angle, the prominent and pretty Stamford divorcee upon whom Ballou was calling in her apartments just before his dead body was found on the sidewalk in front of the block where Mrs. Angle lived, with blood-stained foot tracks leading to Mrs. Angle's apartments on June 24, 1914.

Mrs. Angle, who has been held to await the coroner's report, is now at the Summer home of her father in Maine under arrangements for return to the jurisdiction of the Fairfield County Superior Court if she is wanted.

In concluding his finding the coroner says:

"I do not feel justified, in view of her extraordinary if not cruel conduct, in assuming the absence of criminality in Mrs. Angle. While recognizing the possibility of the accidental death of the deceased and her innocence, I am satisfied the circumstances surrounding such death bears such unusual earmarks of crime as to warrant full inquiry by the criminal authorities. To that end do I therefore find that Waldo Ballou came to his death at the time, place and from the cause above set forth, as the result of the criminal act of Helen M. Angle."

A copy of the report was today transmitted to Prosecuting Attorney Phillips of Stamford and to States Attorney Homer S. Cummings of Fairfield County, who will take charge of the case.

Manville's Show Girl Bride Pawned Gems to See Movies

NEW YORK, July 28.—Mrs. Thomas Fraser Manville, Jr., daughter-in-law of the asbestos millionaire and formerly Florence Huber, a Ziegfeld show girl, explained today why she left her young husband and is seeking separation.

"Every smattered my romance," she said. "Tommy's father gave him a job nailing packing cases at $15 a week. We lived on that for seven months. If we wanted to take in the movies I had to pawn jewels or clothes to raise the money. Finally Tommy got a raise to $20 a week. Then I gave up cafe dancing to New York. I'm studying now to do dancing exhibitions. I'm suing for separation, $1,000 annually and $50 a week allowance.

"Tommy was all right. But his father—his Tommy said his father told him to have as many sweethearts as he wanted—but not to marry one. He was furious when Tommy married me."

Call Policemen to Stop Trolley Cars

EAST PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 27.—Police required to "hold up" electric cars refusing to stop at a resort to allow residents to ride will be investigated, according to members of the town council. Motormen ignoring residents who wanted to ride, Patrolman Patterson and Special Policeman Bullard stand in the track and hold up the cars.

Fiancee Balked Rained Straw Hats Kicked Out of Jail

Declaring that his sweetheart, Daphene, had just changed her mind Alick Chernoff of Willington, W. Va., returned to the county clerk's office at Wheeling and had obtained twenty-four pears ago.

Where her right to the estate of John P. Hamlin was questioned, Sarah Hamlin Hose of Washington investigated and discovered that her name had been changed to "Sarah Hamlin Socks" in the probate proceedings. The mistake was rectified.

Because John Van Riper loses straw hats as often as other persons lose umbrellas in Bloomfield, N. Y., friends covered his front and back lawn with head gear. Sixty hats greeted John when he appeared.

MISS MADELINE TONELLY (at top) and her sister Rose, two South Boston girls entered in the American's August swimming carnival.

Madeline Tonely of South Boston, a prize-winner in the AMERICAN'S last swimming carnival on the Charles River Basin, is the latest entrant for the carnival to be held Saturday, August 22.

Madeline and her younger sister have both entered. The younger sister, Rose, is only nine years old. The girls are swimming every day at City Point.

Madeline Tonely has won more than forty prizes in swimming contests since the time when, at twelve years old, she swam Hull Gut in 16 minutes and 4 seconds—a record-breaking performance. Rose also has her share of medals.

Miss Tonely, besides entering for the AMERICAN'S carnival, challenges any girl swimmer between thirteen and twenty, anywhere in New England, to races at two or more distances. Miss Tonely is willing the other girl shall pick the course for the races.

GIRL OF 15 WHO STABBED SELF TELLS OF LOVE

Amertina Grieco, the fifteen-year-old girl who for the sake of her blighted love, tried to kill herself with a bread knife and is now recovering at the Relief Hospital, told her story today.

"My father and mother were too strict," she said. "I wanted to marry Patsy. But they said 'No—you're too young. Wait five years.'

"I wanted to die. There was nothing to live for. If I couldn't be friends with Patsy, I didn't want to live. So I stabbed myself."

The girl lives at No. 494½ Commercial street, and the wound in her chest is not deep. She stabbed herself late last night.

After her parents had retired she stole into the kitchen, seized a carving knife and slipped into the streets.

Seeking a dark alley, she thrust the knife into her bosom. Then, pondering over her sorrows, she walked to the North End park. Here, in a weakened condition, she was found by a passing citizen, who compelled her to go to the hospital.

When she had told the doctors this much of her grief, she became reticent and would not even give the name of her youthful suitor. Amertina's parents were sent for, and she will be able to go home tomorrow.

Italian Flies Over Alps with Passenger

GENEVA, July 28.—Driving a monoplane, the Italian aviator Landini, accompanied by Dr. Lampugnani, flew across Monte Rosa, 15,217 feet high, going from Novara to Viege, a distance of 100 miles in a direct line. The two men were almost frozen. The trip is called the greatest flight across the Alps with a passenger and occupied nearly three hours.

Wife Who Took Poison Saved by Husband

Mrs. Mary Paley of No. 655 East Fifth street, South Boston, has to thank her husband John for saving her life. He found her writhing in pain, and she admitted that she had taken belladonna because she was despondent. He gave her black coffee, salt and mustard and saved her life, so physicians state.

ATTRIDGE PUTS TUNNEL TOLLS UP TO CURLEY

Absolute and final responsibility for any future retention of the strongly condemned East Boston Tunnel toll charges today is placed squarely up to Mayor Curley, under an order introduced by Councilman John J. Attridge and adopted by the City Council without a dissenting vote.

Councilman Attridge's order specifically requests that the Mayor take such steps as are necessary to abolish this toll charge. It further points out that this can be done by Curley under existing statutes by having the tunnel bonds and interest reimbursed by the state itself. To that end an order for action from Mayor Curley is asked for.

This order follows the AMERICAN'S editorial statement of a few days ago that, if sincere in his expressed regarding the welfare of the people, Mayor Curley could secure a way to make the East Boston tunnel tolls free. The whole question now is up to Curley, by unanimous vote of the City Council. The citizens of East Boston today are waiting to learn what he intends to act in the matter.

ACTING MAYOR RAIDS TAVERN AT PAWTUCKET

PAWTUCKET, July 28.—Acting Mayor Thayer personally conducted a raid early today on the Emmett Tavern and struck a blow at the political ring.

"I have ordered the tavern closed," said Thayer after the raid. "If it is allowed to reopen, through political influence, I am through with Pawtucket politics."

Mayor Easterbrooks is away and Mr. Thayer, with three business friends, went to the Tavern last night and asked for beer. It was served them. Then they ordered cocktails and sandwiches. Cocktails were served, but not the food. "Why is this?" Mr. Thayer asked. A man said he was David Jones, the night clerk, replied: "None of your business."

Then someone recognized Mr. Thayer and told Jones who he was. "I don't give a d——," said Jones. "No one can ask me any questions."

Thayer thereupon left the tavern with his friends and telephoned for the police. In half an hour, the place was closed. While the raid was on, Nelly Brophy and Mary Donahue were arrested for disturbing the peace.

NO Man will despair of any accomplishment by mankind if he knows thoroughly what man has already done and how he has done it.

Buckle's History of Civilization in England is a book that (carefully read) will enable any one to get a comprehensive grasp of the world's history and of human thought.

We Have Arranged for Its Publication in Four Volumes for $1.00

It is exactly the same book that has always previously sold for four times this amount.

It is printed from the same plates as the original edition, and the lower price is only possible because of our determination to give it wide distribution regardless of profit.

You can secure these books from your local dealer or you may order them direct from this paper.

BOSTON AMERICAN

ARMY WORMS MOBILIZE FOR BOSTON SIEGE

The dreaded "army worm" has invaded all of Southeastern Massachusetts in uncounted millions. This inch-long pest, with its striped body and hard shell, has already eaten up thousands of dollars worth of garden produce.

It marches on a cornfield and before the farmer knows what is the matter the cornfield is nothing but stalks. Its name, in fact, is derived from its method of attack. Like the locust, which ate up the grain fields of ancient times, the army worm, with its formation of regiments, corps, battalions and platoons, wheels up in front of a field of radishes, beets, cabbages, turnips, asparagus or any other green produce with tender leaves and eats everything in sight.

WAR IS DECLARED.

War has been declared against it. Many crops on farms of Bristol, Barnstable and Plymouth counties and the Islands of Nantucket and Martha's Vineyard have either been totally destroyed or are menaced by the near approach of the terrible army worm. This is the first struggle between man and the insects that has been staged in this part of the country.

The boll weevil of the South, which wipes out cotton fields, is no more dreaded than this pest. It is a native of Massachusetts soil and in most years is subdued by its natural enemies, the beetles, birds and toads. Its sudden rise this year is unexplained. Its numbers are staggering and its toll of plant life, before entirely exterminated, will be extensive.

GARDEN TRUCK IN DANGER.

Its attack has been sudden and within the last few days when its appearance was first discovered and identified, it has caused thousand of dollars in loss to the raisers of green produce. It is a hundred-fold more destructive than the gypsy or brown-tail moths, which do not attack garden truck.

It scorns tree foliage and feeds on the choicest green stalks of lettuce, asparagus, green corn, beets, radishes, turnips and in fact everything on which a farmer depends for a livelihood.

Frantic appeals for protection have been made to State Forester F. W. Rane, who has charge of the extermination work being done by the Gypsy Moth Bureau of the State. He has responded and has had printed circulars advising the best methods of meeting the attack of the countless millions of little fighters.

DREADED ARMY WORM which attacks in regular ranks like a human military body. Scale shows length of some of the "soldiers."

They are an inch long or less, according to age, and have a strength which is wonderful. They survive immersion in water and doggedly escape from the sticky solutions which catch other insects.

The only way in which their destruction can be accomplished, it is found, is by digging a trench all around the garden and filling it with a mixture of bran, molasses and arsenic or paris green.

Circulars are being mailed as fast as the office force of Forester Rane can work, to each of the centres affected.

Edward D. Bassett of Providence Dead

PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 28.—Edward Brown Bassett, sixty-four, member of State commission to revise judicial statutes, died at his home early today of heart failure.

BRIDE OF MAN HELD AS THIEF GIVES UP RING

Mrs. Mark Shapiro of No. 7 Walley street, bride of two months, whose husband was arrested on a charge of attempted burglary after a chase through Dorchester, came to the Dorchester police station today to help the police in any way she could to clear up the case. Mrs. Shapiro gave a $1000 diamond ring to the police when told of her husband's arrest. She said that she had not the least knowledge of the career alleged against her husband.

Shapiro was taken to police headquarters today for Bertillon measurements and to be photographed. Then he was returned to Dorchester police station, where officers from Brookline, Quincy, Hyde Park and other suburban places looked him over. The police wished to learn if he could be identified with thefts and burglaries in those places.

Dorchester people whose homes have been burglarized of late came to the station in the hope of recovering property.

Open Air Suffrage Meeting Tonight

An unusually interesting group of suffrage speakers are to talk "Votes for Women" at the two meetings to be held at Columbus square and Pemberton square this evening under the auspices of the Boston Equal Suffrage Association for Good Government. Mrs. Frances Kelley Curtis heads the list and the others are Mrs. Eileen Sullivan Coughlin, head of the South Boston branch of the association; Miss Dorothy L. Mosher of Waltham, Miss Minnie Mury and Francis M. Cummings, former Representative from Ward 23.

Gives Congregation Monthly Fire Drill

FALL RIVER, July 28.—The Rev. G. D. Harris, rector of St. James' Episcopal Church, will give a monthly fire drill to his congregation. At the last fire drill the church was emptied in one and three-quarter minutes and the Sunday School of 300 members in one-half minute.

COUNCIL BALKS CURLEY'S HASTE ON LIGHT PACT

Mayor Curley has met defeat in his plan to force the Edison street lighting contract through the City Council while three members are out of town on vacation.

No action was taken by the City Council yesterday on the proposed contract, although Mayor Curley, a few hours before the meeting, brought to the attention of each Councilman by letter "the necessity of prompt and decisive action upon the pending contract."

No definite action can now be taken for at least two weeks, unless a special meeting is called. Two weeks is believed to be the limit of the time that the Edison Electric Illuminating Company will hold open the contract.

ENGLAND FAILS IN EFFORT TO AVERT WAR; HOSTILITIES BEGUN

AUSTRIA SEIZES TWO SERVIAN SHIPS

necessary. The council was held at the war ministry and M. Messimy presided. All the generals commanding divisions of the French army participated in the conference, which lasted for several hours. Pessimism prevails here over Germany's attitude, and the return of President Poincare is anxiously awaited.

According to the Matin, the envoy of Austria-Hungary has notified the French foreign minister that Austria intends "to bring Servia to her senses today."

AUSTRIA TO OCCUPY BELGRADE TODAY

PARIS, July 28.—Belgrade will be occupied by Austrian troops this afternoon, according to latest advices received here. They have concentrated across the Danube river from the Servian capital and a pontoon bridge is being constructed under cover of artillery to allow passage over the Danube.

SERVIAN TROOPS SEIZE RAILROADS

SALONICA, July 28.—Servian troops today seized all railroads in the Kingdom. Traffic was suspended on all lines and the cars and locomotives assembled at Uskub for the transportation of soldiers and supplies.

The railroad north of Nish, whither the seat of government has been transferred from Belgrade, is said to have been mined.

All Austrian and Servian subjects in Greek territory have been notified by their consuls to rejoin regiments.

ENGLAND FAILS IN PLAN TO AVERT WAR

By HERBERT TEMPLE.

LONDON, July 28.—England's efforts to prevent war in the Balkans have failed. Germany has refused to accept the proposal that she participate in mediation efforts unless Austria requests such action.

This information was conveyed here today in a dispatch from Berlin. Sir Edward Grey withheld information as to the progress of his negotiations, but his silence was taken as a sign of failure. There is no hope here that Austria will request mediation.

Servia's reply to the Austro-Hungarian ultimatum suggested arbitration. The mobilization of the dual monarchy's troops and the rupture of diplomatic relations was the only answer vouchsafed.

WON'T HEAR OF AUSTRIA.

The Berlin dispatches state that Germany will not bring pressure on Austria. With the most powerful army in Europe ready to back her own forces in case of interference by Russia, Austria will proceed with her campaign.

The following statement was given to the AMERICAN today by the official secretary of the British foreign minister, Sir Edward Grey:

"I am unable to make any announcement regarding Germany's reply to Sir Edward Grey's conference proposals."

The diplomats who had been waiting to learn Germany's position in view of the acceptance by Italy and France, received this official statement as confirmation of the Berlin dispatch showing that Mr. Grey's efforts had failed.

WAR TO BE LOCALIZED.

There is strong hope, however, that the Austro-Servian conflict will be localized, and that the danger of a war involving all the powers is much less than it was twenty-four hours ago. This belief is due to the official statement issued at Vienna, declaring that Austria has "No desire for territorial expansion."

This statement, regarded as a pledge by Austria that she will not seize Servian territory, is believed by diplomats to remove the chief ground on which Russia might take up arms in behalf of Servia.

The diplomatic corps had been anxiously awaiting this pledge from Austria and practically all its members were optimistic today as to the general situation, though admitting that there was no further prospect of urging Austria's warfare on Servia. They showed by their remarks that continental dispatches stating that Austro-Hungarian troops had already invaded Servia.

GREY CONFERS WITH LEADERS.

"That was to be expected," said one envoy. "We had no idea that anything but complete submission on the part of Servia would prevent a war, but we are very hopeful that this will be localized."

Sir Edward Grey arrived at his office two hours before his usual time and conferred with national leaders at length before going to Premier Asquith's office.

Two of the most important visitors at the foreign office were Lord Kitchener and Lord Curzon. Both have an extensive knowledge of the resources of the entire great powers.

SERVIAN KING DEFIES AUSTRIA

"We will crush Austria by calling up all the reserves. We will be able to put half a million men in the field. Every man is resolved to perish in the last ditch rather than allow their country, which has just risen after 500 years of oppression, to be crushed."—King Peter of Servia, in statement today.

AUSTRIANS EMBRACE AS WAR IS DECLARED

VIENNA, July 28.—News of the formal declaration of hostilities was received with a patriotic outburst throughout the capital. Men embraced on the street and wept.

Great crowds paraded before the various ministries singing the national airs and cheering for the government late this afternoon. A mob surrounded the Servian legation shouting: "Kill the assassins of Archduke Ferdinand!" and "Burn Belgrade, the Assassins' Den!"

The formal declaration of war by Austria was not necessary, as Servia was not a party to The Hague agreement, but by making it Austria accorded the smaller country all the courtesy of war that the signatories to The Hague stipulated should precede the formal opening of hostilities.

Statements made by government officials before the declaration of war was sent to Servia showed that there was no possible way in which hostilities could be averted.

They declared that even is Servia granted every demand the Austro-Hungarian army now idnet be held back. It is understood that the war declaration was delayed until the mobilization of Austria's troops was complete.

AUSTRIA ASKS SERBS' COMPLETE SURRENDER

By C. F. BERTELLI.

PARIS, July 28.—The shadow of a general war hovers over Europe as black today as yesterday, despite the frantic efforts of Sir Edward Grey to bring France, Germany and Italy into line with England to mediate in the Austro-Servian dispute.

Italy immediately signified her readiness to support England in this plan. France and Germany followed suit.

CONDITIONS DRASTIC.

The French attitude in this matter is particularly significant, as it is governed by Russia's wishes. It is interpreted as a temporizing move designed to give Austria a few days wherein to depart from her present obstinacy.

The drastic conditions precedent to the acceptance of mediation laid down by Austria render success of the movement highly improbable.

Austria's carefully drafted ultimatum unless it is clearly understood that the pressure of the mediatory powers shall be brought to bear solely upon Servia not only to accept unconditionally every demand set forth in Count Berchtold's ultimatum, but also that Servia must pay the entire cost of Austria's mobilization, which Austria estimates at $50,000,000.

It is obvious this would amount to nothing less than complete surrender on the part of Servia without an effort to defend herself.

It would also imply that Servia in the future must be more or less a province of the Hapsburgs. Russia seems resolved not to tolerate such a humiliation on the part of the Slav nation.

Meanwhile mobilization in Austria is going on with feverish activity. In various chancelleries the inclination today is to interpret Austria's uncompromising attitude as an indication she is bent on an appeal to arms and will take her first active military measures against Servia within twenty-four hours of the time her mobilization is complete.

I am in a position to state that the conflict will not be localized, and that after the first gun has been fired Russia will send an ultimatum to Austria tantamount to a declaration of war.

Whether the pacific efforts of England are crowned with success or not, there is no diplomat in Europe who is not convinced a peaceful settlement would only mean postponement of the inevitable war. The Teutonic and the Slav races are bound sooner or later to come into a mighty clash that will involve the whole of Europe.

GERMANY REJECTS BRITISH PROPOSAL

BERLIN, July 28.—The German government today returned an unfavorable reply to the British proposal for a conference of the ambassadors in London of the European powers in an endeavor to bring about a settlement of the Austro-Servian difficulty.

In its communication Germany declares that it considers the suggestions of Sir Edward Grey, the British Foreign secretary, as well meant and sound in principle, but not feasible in practice and impossible to carry out.

The communication says it cannot be expected that a great power holding a course with a smaller neighbor will submit the matter to the decision of a European areopagus. Far less can it be hoped that two great powers will submit to be summoned to the role of accused before such a tribunal.

Germany makes the counter suggestion that negotiations for peace be conducted between the cabinets instead of by a conference.

The stock market here today opened generally weak, particularly so the case of Austrian specialties. Russian 1 per cents, on the other hand, were ½ higher. The changes generally were small, the attitude of the Berlin bankers having reassured their customers and checked the tendency to sacrifice securities.

The bankers' Association held another session today and decided to meet regularly during the crisis. They resolved to support home securities by heavy purchases, if necessary.

200,000 IN U. S. MAY BE CALLED TO FIGHT FOR AUSTRIA

NEW YORK, July 28.—Dr. Ernst Wetter, acting Austro-Hungarian consul-general, announced today that he had received a cable from his government stating that as yet there had been no general mobilization of the army, but that all Austro-Hungarian subjects still under the colors are liable to be called for service individually.

The Austro-Hungarian government has also published an amnesty to everybody who goes to the colors, either called or not. Between 200,000 and 250,000 Austro-Hungarians in this country, it is said, are still under the colors.

400 ARRESTED IN ANTI-GERMAN "WAR" RIOTING IN PARIS

PARIS, July 28.—Publication of a report that the Austrian embassy had received official notification of the capture of Belgrade by soldiers of Austria-Hungary precipitated "war riots" here that went on until dawn, when the police, led by Prefect Henrion in person, gained the upper hand.

Many were injured and 400 arrests were made in the conflicts between the police and the mobs, which threatened to wreck and burn cafes and business houses owned by Germans. The rioters, shouting "Give us war!" and "We want Alsace-Lorraine!" formed themselves with chairs and tables at the boulevard cafes and attacked the police fiercely.

Many heads were broken before the mobs were quelled.

BRITISH FLEET COALS IN HASTE FOR CRUISE INTO THE NORTH SEA

LONDON, July 28.—There is great activity in the British navy today. The First fleet, recalled by wireless, returned to Portland and immediately began coaling and taking in stores. Stores sufficient to last several weeks have been put aboard the vessels. No leave will be granted the officers and crew until the war situation clears.

Twenty-nine battleships, mainly dreadnoughts, and four battle cruisers, besides flotillas of destroyers and auxiliaries, are in the harbor. It is understood that, when coaling and victualing is completed, the First fleet will leave for some point in the North Sea.

WE'LL CRUSH AUSTRIA, DECLARES KING PETER

KRAGUYEVATZ, Servia, July 28.—"We will crush Austria."

With these proud words King Peter of Servia today proclaimed himself and his country ready for combat and set at rest rumors that he was urging Prince Alexander, who had served as regent for a few weeks, to yield to Austria without giving battle.

"By calling up all the reserves," said King Peter with flashing eyes, "we will be able to put half a million men in the field. Every man is resolved to perish in the last ditch rather than allow their country which has just risen after 500 years of oppression, to be crushed.

"My Serbs are equal to a million Czechs, Hungarians, Germans, Croatians, Ruthenians and Slavonians who form the Austrian army. Every thing divides the Austrian army, which will not fight for a single ideal as we shall.

"Our mountain-trained fighters form the most formidable legion in the world. The officers are splendidly trained, the armament is ultra-modern. The infantry possesses model Mauser rifles. The artillery has Maxims and 1908 model French quick-firing guns."

GREAT PATRIOTIC DEMONSTRATIONS STIR CITY OF VIENNA

VIENNA, July 28.—The greatest patriotic demonstrations ever witnessed here occurred last night and today. Great throngs milled through the streets of the capital, mingling cries of "Down with Servia" and "We want war with Russia."

The police were hard pressed at times to control the mobs. Shop threatened to attack subjects of Servia. A special guard was set up for the Servian legation, which one mob threatened to burn.

The war spirits of the throngs were influenced by dispatches from Semlin, stating that Austrian refugees fleeing from Belgrade had been fired on by Servian troops.

On Leong Tongs on $2,000 Picnic See Much, Eat Little

A party of 284, including members of the On Leong Tong, twenty women, most of them white, and several children, are back in Boston from a $2,000 picnic in Providence, on which they saw a good deal of Rhode Island, but very little to eat.

Shoo Wing of Boston was in charge of the Chinese. He didn't like the park chosen for the clam bake and so paid cash for the stipend establishment and ordered nine taxis to take the throng to Roger Williams Park. It took the taxis forty-one trips to carry the 284 over, and it cost a lot of money, but Shoo looked as though he enjoyed spending the money.

At Roger Williams Park there was nothing much to eat and Shoo Wing, still intent upon being open-handed, telephoned to Rocky Point to arrange for shore dinners. He decided to call a halt when he learned it was eighteen miles away, so everybody came back home, tired and hungry.

What Cadum is Made Of

Cadum, the well-known remedy for Eczema and other skin troubles, is one of the very few preparations sold in drug stores that is not secret. A list of its ingredients is printed upon every box. One ingredient is oil of cade, which is recognized by doctors as being one of the best things known for Eczema. Another ingredient is zinc oxide, which dries up the water that forms upon sore places on the skin. Two other ingredients are petrolatum and white wax, which make a covering to protect these sore spots from the air and water. A trial box of Cadum can be secured in any drug store for 10c, but it is cheaper to buy the 25c size, as it contains nearly four times as much as the 10c box.

WHITE MOTOR TRUCKS Are the Nation's Choice

BOTH IN THE QUANTITY OF TRUCKS SOLD AND IN THE VALUE OF TRUCK SALES, WE ARE THE LARGEST MANUFACTURERS OF COMMERCIAL MOTOR VEHICLES IN AMERICA.

Official Records of the Motor Truck Industry Verify This Statement

This Leadership of the Truck Industry is of the utmost importance, both to the many who already own White Trucks, and to the many others who will eventually purchase White Trucks.

TO THE OWNERS OF WHITE TRUCKS

THIS LEADERSHIP proves the correctness of your judgment in selecting your motor truck equipment.

It shows that you have chosen the same motor truck that the majority of truck users in America have selected.

In practically every case, this selection has been the result of a process of rigid experimentation and elimination, in which White Trucks have proved their superiority over all others.

This preference for White Trucks by the largest users of motor trucks as well as by the majority of motor truck users guarantees that your investment is protected by a successful, well established manufacturer, having a superior organization for rendering permanent and efficient service during the life-time of the trucks.

TO FUTURE OWNERS OF WHITE TRUCKS

THIS LEADERSHIP is conclusive proof that White Trucks must be superior to all others, because White Supremacy is not measured in numbers alone, but in value as well.

With so many makes of motor trucks on the market, all clamoring for recognition, indisputable supremacy can be gained only by superior merit.

Untruthful advertising, bargain prices, exaggerated claims and guarantees that cannot be fulfilled may make the first sale, but only superior merit can create the confidence which brings continuous repeat orders.

The record of continuous repeat orders whereby the foremost firms in America have acquired huge fleets of White Trucks, after experimenting with other makes, is a convincing reason why you should use White Trucks.

WHITE TRUCKS ARE MOST ECONOMICAL TO OWN

That White Trucks are slightly higher in price, makes White leadership in the truck industry even more complete. It is plain evidence that White construction is so superior that the higher first cost of a White Truck is economy in the long run—proof that White Trucks last longer and cost less to operate and maintain, making them the most economical trucks to own.

White Trucks are built in capacities of ¾, 1½, 3 and 5 tons can have in doing her daily housework. On Mondays it helps her get through a big wash with far less work and in half the time required by the old-fashioned way. It works best in cool or lukewarm water, and clothes washed with Fels-Naptha Soap do not need to be boiled. It has saved many a woman from a heavy cold, because she does not have to get overheated in a damp, steam-filled kitchen before she goes out to hang up the clothes.

Cleans and brightens paint and woodwork; dissolves grease on pots and pans; takes out all kinds of stains, even blood-stains.

Follow the directions on the Red and Green Wrapper.

EDMUND BREESE STARS IN 'THE MASTER MIND'

By FREDERICK JOHNS.

"The Master Mind," a four-act melodrama, in which Edmund Breese appeared for some months in New York during the past season, was given its first Boston presentation at the Majestic yesterday, with Breese himself in the chief role; Miss Francine Larrimore, who appeared in the original production, in the principal female part, and the Majestic players completing the cast.

The performance yesterday was high class. It moved smoothly, it was perfectly staged and acted as well as any company Mr. Breese might have brought with him from New York would have performed it.

The play itself is a curious and thrilling affair, illogical in places, but teeming with excitement and romance. It is a variation of the "crook" drama. It contains the best role that Edmund Breese has ever played, an old gray valet, crushing and subservient, who is in reality the master mind of the underworld.

To revenge the execution of his brother for murder he succeeds in getting the District Attorney to marry a girl who is his tool. She appears to be the daughter of a respectable family, but the whole family are notorious criminals playing parts. Thus we have opportunity for numerous novel situations. The girl truly loves the villain of this plot, and in the end the old gray wolf relents, but you must see the play to understand that it is not so repulsive as a bald summary of its story would indicate.

Breese has always been a powerful actor, and now he is becoming polished and subtle. His two sides, valet and master criminal, were well defined, and he has lost none of his impressive qualities.

Miss Larrimore is a sweet and charming ingenue, who plays the heroine very effectively. Rose Morrison, as the ex-shoplifter, displayed talent.

Frederick Ormonde as Wainwright, the ex-District Attorney, was admirable in the emotional scenes and too heavy in the lighter ones. Rudolph Meek as a Chicago burglar did as fine a piece of character work as one would wish to see, and Joseph Crehan was also well cast. The remainder of the cast were equally satisfactory.

Loew's Orpheum.

An all star show was presented at this theatre yesterday, headed by Jimmy Lucas and his company of players in a comedy sketch. Other feature acts to appear was "School Days," a company of ten juvenile players; Kipp and Kippy amused with their comedy juggling novelty; Harry Watson, an eccentric vocalist, offered his specialty and pleased immensely. The Telegraph Four made a decided hit in their songs and comedy offering. Others were Burns and Burns, a novelty acrobatic act; The Three Keltis, in a fantastic offering, and Florence Le Meyne, in a refined singing offering. The extra feature was Mary Pickford in a beautiful photo play, entitled "Fanchon."

Loew's St. James.

Marcus Loew presented to his St. James patrons an all star vaudeville show which was headed by the Melnotte Twins. Others to appear was Dillo, Carmen's Minstrels, the creation, tabulated, and which made a decided hit. Burt Hanlon amused with his funny sayings and funny songs. The Dunbad in Duo introduced a novelty new to America in the cycling and wire-walking novelty, consisting of riding on Scotland's music balls. A sketch full of many funny laughs was presented by William Edmonds and company. Delahone, the mimic, also pleased with his impersonations of musical instruments.

Bowdoin Square Theatre.

Fun of the most wholesome kind prior yesterday at the Bowdoin Square Theatre where Violet Mascotte and her Forty Merry Maids continue to entertain the patrons of good measure. Each week the program is entirely changed and new girls are added to the company, which makes it one of the most popular on the stage today. Harry Landers, the all-round comedian with his peculiar laugh stories, by-plays and odd bits, kept the house in convulsions, and he was assisted by Albert Carter, a very clever artist.

Scollay Square Olympia.

At the Scollay Square Olympia Theatre the Gladwin Vaudeville features Sisters Rogers present a neat singing and talking offering; Hugh Lloyd & Co., "The Man on the Bounding Rope," went big; "Blondy" Robinson with his eccentric songs and dancing, won many friends; Carl Wilcox & Co., comedy sketch, entitled "All Aboard for Reno, Passed; The Great Martyrs, spectacular dancing offering, showed something out of the ordinary and proved a good novelty.

Modern Theatre.

Jane Grey, the noted American actress, made her appearance yesterday upon the screen at the new Modern Theatre in Channing Pollock's famous dramatic success "The Little Gray Lady." The production is made by the Famous Players Film Company and is offered in four reels. The feature production for next week will be Max Figman in "The Man on the Box."

Plymouth Theatre.

"Under Cover" will return to the Plymouth Theatre on Saturday, with matinee, August 8, for an engagement of three weeks only. The matinee and evening performance of the opening day will be given in aid of the Salem fire sufferers.

African Hunt Pictures.

Paul J. Rainey's 1914 series of African hunt pictures still continues to crowd the Shubert Theatre, where it has been for the past three weeks. Those who have not seen this latest series of Mr. Rainey's wonderful collections of wild African animals will have to hasten, as next week will be the last opportunity.

Norumbega Park.

The great musical comedy success, which had such a long run in England, made a decided hit yesterday at Norumbega's famous open-air theatre. "Other People's Money" has a connected plot. The fun runs fast and furious and the complications pile up.

MISS GORDON AND TROUPE BIG HIT AT KEITH'S

The mere announcement that Eleanor Gordon was at Keith's supported by Wilson Melrose, Mrs. George A. Hibbard, Francesca Ratoli and Franklyn Searight, was sufficient to pack the house twice yesterday, and delighted audiences were entertained not only by Miss Gordon and her troupe, but also by one of the greatest vaudeville bills ever seen at Keith's.

The vehicle for Miss Gordon's cleverness this season is a one-act comedy, "Patsy," written by Mr. Searight, in which seemingly funny situations follow on one another's heels. Miss Gordon, as "Patsy," was particularly sweet and winsome, and is ably supported by the cast. Miss Gordon and Mrs. Hibbard, both Boston favorites, were the recipients of bouquets of gladioli as they took their encore after encore.

One of the cleverest acts seen at Keith's for a long time and one that won, not only by its freshness and unexpectedness, but by the spirit and spriteliness of the actors, was that of Parillo and Fabrito, the Italian minstrels. The clever youngsters were called back time after time by the enthusiastic audience.

William A. Webster and Franklin Mac, assisted by four musicians, gave a most surprising performance, starting out as a comedy skit and finishing as one of the best musical acts ever seen here, full of surprises and replete with charm.

Another of the surprising acts this week is that of Marcella's bird actors. These wonderful birds talk to order and do surprising acrobatic stunts and intellectual feats that dumfound the beholder.

Frankie and Johnnie Leighton, funnier than ever and still singing doleful songs that send the audience into hysterics, were well received and could hardly get away at the finish of their act, so insistent was the audience for more.

Lexington Park.

An excellent program was presented yesterday in the Rustic Theatre by Larry Boyle's Musical Comedy company. "On the Board Walk" presents many novelties, introducing their original diving tank, holding 1,000 gallons of water. They eat drink, and smoke under water. This is one big laughing show, and judging from the enthusiasm displayed yesterday will have a very successful run.

Villa Napoli.

The popularity of the famous Villa Napoli at Nantasket was never greater than it is now. This delightful seaside resort has attracted many new patrons who have thoroughly enjoyed the many attractive features provided for this season by Manager Di Pesa. One of the distinctive hits of the program is the daily exhibition of the modern dances by Grace Cavanagh and Lester Young.

Paragon Park Has Host of Attractions

Every afternoon and evening Paragon Park and its famous Palm Garden is the scene of the greatest enthusiasm. The program in the cabaret this week brings forth unstinted praise from the patrons and all the old favorites, including the ten famous Cabaret Girls, come in for their share of the applause. The Davis Sisters offer a clever singing and dancing act, which is greatly enjoyed.

The amateur dancing competition in the Dansant last night proved more successful than either of the two succeeding ones, there being many contestants entered for the prize. A beautiful silver trophy cup is awarded the winners. The latest modern dances by Miss Jean Thompson and George Schaffer have become very popular with the diners in the Dansant.

Bass Point and Nahant.

There is nothing more refreshing than a harbor sail on either of the steamers of the Bass Point and Nahant line, from Otis Wharf, Atlantic avenue, to Bass Point and return. The hotels at Bass Point are offering no end of enticing menus and specialties in shore dinners, with musical entertainment by excellent bands and orchestras. Dancing in the "Mid-Ocean" ball room at the Ocean Pier at Revere is daily attracting many of the excursionists at Bass Point. Three steamers maintain a half hourly schedule between these two points.

Making Small Display Advertisements Pay

The First of a Series of Talks Showing How Stores and Shops, However Small, Can Profitably Advertise

EVERY business man in Boston's shopping districts can advertise successfully. All can win profit and achieve prosperity if they will adopt the right advertising policy and stick to it.

Few of them operate big stores or carry heavy stocks.

Thus it is not absolutely necessary to use large space in the newspapers. Small display advertisements pay proportionately as well as big display advertisements.

They can be made relatively as conspicuous.

Their very brevity commands extensive reading. And being easily read and quickly comprehended they are decidedly influential—

If—

They describe worthy merchandise, quote attractive prices and announce seasonable styles.

Style is often as attractive a feature as price. This is what the dealer must study—the merchandise which he uses for advertising purposes. In his advertising he must specialize.

If he is running a men's furnishing goods store he should select a particular shirt or some other article that fills an important want in the man's wardrobe. He must be sure the quality is unquestionable—that the style is superior—that the value is apparent.

When he has settled upon the merchandise—is positive that it will give complete satisfaction—he must plan his showing of accessory merchandise—goods that a man will need to complete his outfit, such as collars, neckties, hosiery and underwear.

These—intended as suitable companions of his advertised values—must be selected to favorably impress those who enter his store.

The advertised merchandise, and the merchandise that immediately supports it, must be conspicuously displayed in the store and in the windows—must be the featured part of the store's stock.

Every man who responds to the advertising will not confine his purchase to advertised goods alone.

He will, under the guidance of clever salespeople, be attracted to other departments. His good will having been won by the merit of the goods advertised, he will not hesitate to invest then and there in everything he needs.

And if what he buys makes good under the test of actual use, he will undoubtedly become a regular customer.

A great deal depends upon the correct wording of the advertisement. But more essential than the wording is the "soul" of the advertisement. It must breathe and reflect the truth—must be free from verbosity and exaggeration—must convey a buying opportunity of honest advantage to the reader.

This does not always mean "bargain" advantage.

More often it involves the advantage of styles and appearance and wear.

And the retail dealer who advertises and creates a favorable familiarity for one line of merchandise will have no difficulty in disposing of other lines. New customers will wear a path to his door, and he will enjoy the thrill of intensified business under the impetus of advertising.

The motive of these talks is to show merchants how they can take advantage of the profitable practice of newspaper advertising. They propose to make each user of small space eventually a user of big space in all the good newspapers. But at first concentration is essential.

The American reaches the progressive people of Boston—people who have both the means and the inclination to buy.

Over 400,000 responsive readers daily.

BILL JAMES LIKELY TO FACE CHICAGO CUBS IN THIRD GAME OF SERIES

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTING NEWS

SPEAKER'S HEAVY HITTING IS WINNING MANY BALL GAMES FOR THE RED SOX

BOXERS BATTLE IN FOUR BOUTS AT ATLAS CLUB

ATLAS A. A. PROGRAM.
Charley Beyers vs. "Tiger" Young.
"Young" Jasper vs. Al McCoy.
Terry Brooks vs. Andy Cortez.
Al Shubert vs. Charley Goldman.

By JACK CONWAY.

FAST, clever boxing, and also a great deal of hard, close hitting, is looked for at the all-star show which the Atlas A. A. will hold at the Arena tonight. Four two-round bouts are on the card, and the top-heavy affair, "Tane" alongside of "Kid" Williams, the world's bantamweight champion. Counterpunching Tane is expected to put up a rugged fight, as both of them will be anxious to win the referee's decision.

Shubert is one of the cleanest battlers in the game of the day. He is a fair boxer, but has won the majority of his ring tussles by taking the aggressive and forcing the issue, and exchange blows with his opponent. Goldman is a veteran of 500 bouts, and may be relied upon to put up a hard fight.

CONSIDERABLE interest is being shown in the bout between Terry Brooks of this city and Andy Cortez, the New York lightweight. These boys met at the Atlas Club last week and Brooks was awarded the decision at the end of ten rounds of sensational fighting. The rival boxers stood in the center of the ring a great part of the time and swapped punches to the queen's taste. Many of the fans who witnessed the whirl were of the opinion that Cortez was entitled to a draw, but Referee Donoghue says he is in position to state that he was not entitled to it, as a result almost every round was hard hitting Brooks along at a merry clip.

JACK DOUGHERTY will also place his new Al McCoy on exhibition tonight. Dougherty's latest bread-winner formerly fought under the name of Joe Threl and comes from Philadelphia. After the latter left Manager Bill Carrigan and everyone of the Boston Red Sox players is highly elated. Now, with Speaker's return to form a glorious opportunity is on to win the American League pennant.

With Speaker playing only mediocre ball the Boston players realized their chances to overhaul the Athletics were mighty slim, but with Tris playing the old time brand of baseball the team is confident that the fast traveling Athletics will not only be overhauled but passed by.

Of course, the question naturally arises, "Who will stop the Athletics?" and with one accord the Boston players reply, "We will." There is one team that has it on the Mackmen going and coming, and that club is the Red Sox. With Speaker the Tris of old their chances for trimming the Mackmen when the two teams meet are just that much better.

Tris has been hitting the ball for fare thee well in the last two games.

He is hammering the sphere right on the trade mark and the opposing outfielders are indeed busy bees. He cracked out three hits Sunday, his batting being chiefly responsible for the Red Sox victory, while Monday it was Tris' big stick that drove in the first and second of Boston's three runs. On the defensive it was again Speaker. One pitcher heard a certain outfielder having nine chances in a game, but that is the number that came Tris' way Monday. Eight were in the shape of putouts, and the other, a corking assist and throw that came to the plate with unerring aim and cut down Cleveland's one line chance to score. Three solid singles to the outfield in succession failed to produce a run for Cleveland for the simple reason that Speaker's arm was too much for Kirke's legs.

And a pair of Speaker's eight catches, caught off what appeared to be certain doubles and triples, the Naps lost by three of their runs as a result of his wonderful work.

The teams clash in the fourth game of the series this afternoon and the Boston team is confident of making a clean sweep of the series.

Two City Track Meets on Saturday

Two track and field meets are scheduled for next Saturday. One to be held at Wood Island Park for residents of East Boston. North End and East Boston districts, and the other at Franklin Field for Hyde Park, Roslindale, Brighton and the Brighton sections of the city. The two first place winners in each event for juniors, intermediates and seniors will be eligible to compete for the championship of the city in the finals to be held at Franklin Field on August 29. The list of events follow:

JUNIORS—Boys under 5 feet 1 inch and under fifteen years. 50-yard dash, 130-yard run, running high jump, running broad jump. Relay races in final meets only.

INTERMEDIATES—Boys not included in the Junior or Senior Division—75-yard dash, 220-yard dash, running high jump, running broad jump, putting 8-pound shot.

SENIORS—Boys 5 feet 5 inches or over in height or from seventeen to nineteen years of age. 100-yard dash, 220-yard run, 440-yard run, 880-yard run, 1 mile run, running high jump, running broad jump, putting 12-pound shot.

Relay races at final meet—Juniors, four boys, 110 yards each; Intermediate, four boys, 220 yards each; Final, four boys, 220 yards each.

To Race for Italian Title at Big Picnic

The features of the athletic program of the Church of Our Lady of Pompeii field day, to be held at Macdonian Grove Thursday, August 29, will be a 22-mile run, in which many aspirants for the Italian championship of the United States will have an opportunity to compete. A large list of entries is in the hands of the judges. In the list of names is the present champion, Joseph Donato.

Donato was the first Italian to finish in the recent Marathon race held under the auspices of the B. A. A.

SPEAKER'S WORK WINNING GAMES FOR CARRIGAN

By ED BANG.

CLEVELAND, O., July 28.—Tris Speaker is himself again!

And in making that statement we mean to convey to you that there isn't a better all around ball player living.

Tristam got away to a bad start last Spring and really hadn't been able to hit his old stride. But he found himself Sunday and he has found himself here. The original Manager Bill Carrigan and everyone of the Boston Red Sox players is highly elated. Now, with Speaker in Speaker's return to form a glorious opportunity is on to win the American League pennant.

With Speaker playing only mediocre ball the Boston players realized their chances to overhaul the Athletics were mighty slim, but with Tris playing the old time brand of baseball the team is confident that the fast traveling Athletics will not only be overhauled but passed by.

BILL JAMES MAY FACE THE CUBS AGAIN TODAY

By NICK FLATLEY.

At 'em again today, old scouts. You Braves took another hop towards the roof yesterday. Keep right on while the hopping is good. The bigger they are the harder they fall. Those Cubs may be in second place, but yes Braves have the number all right.

The Giants came back a bit yesterday, along with the Cubs, and the Cardinals stood still. You're half a game nearer third, and half games count these days. A few more of 'em, and you can set sail after the Cubs' perch from the cozy of vantage of third place.

Everybody's with you and pulling hard. Sixteen thousand Saturday, and the unusually big Monday bunch yesterday ought to keep you tearing along. More power to you!

Knowing that we are with them, it's up to the Stallings stalwarts to make it two out of three this afternoon. They will, or come mighty near it. Having watched them in a couple of games, it's easy to see why the Braves cleaned up on the Giants.

PLENTY OF GINGER.

They have the class and the old fight. Nothing bothers them a bit. They boot away a run or two, they go out and proceed to hammer it back again. One run or a dozen, it's all the same to them.

Now Stallings did a lot of driving early in the year. He knew what he was doing. Now the players have the drive themselves and pop up like a jack in the box every time they get a chance.

That means ten games or so in the race would be losing along waiting for the end of the season. But not the Braves. Anybody trying to persuade the Boston players that they are so chance would get as enthusiastic as a grand jury and as quiet as a sinn feiner at an anarchist's meeting. But with the chances, to an outsider, naturally appearing very slim, that's neither here nor there with the Braves. They're going to keep in the hunt and nothing will stop them till they're out beyond any doubt.

All this naturally assures the local fans of a rousing time at baseball and at the Walpole street lot in the next few weeks.

The excellent and thoroughly masterly manner in which Evers, Maranville and Schmidt rang down the curtain yesterday was a fair sample of what happened out in the hills on the last fifty occasions the ball re-pair. So we can expect to see very much of the same, and perhaps some of the real thrills thrown in for good luck.

Today's big battle should attract another notable gathering of the clans. Yesterday's crowd came mighty close to a record. Some record breaker. While the battle spirit possessed the Boston players, they'll draw. No doubt of that.

James, who started out yesterday like a winner, and then was taken sick will probably be chased back this afternoon. The lengthy individual was working well when he departed and as he already has a couple of Chicago scalps on his belt, it would be good medicine to turn him loose. Of the Chicagos and, yesterday's starter, Hendricks, can be sent forth to trot another heat. Mr. Cheney fount the ocean very rough and quickly packed for shore. He hit a soft spot, or a hard spot, as the case may be, but usually is some pitcher, even against the Braves.

Our other friends, the Red Sox, still keep it up and now have six straight as a starter in a winning streak. They have shot the Cleveland team so full of holes that the outfit casts a shadow like a sieve. They have their last chance to practice on the Naps today before heading for Chicago, where their fate may be settled.

SIX STRAIGHT FOR SOX.

Twice already this season clashes with the Calahans have been disastrous to rosy-looking Sox sparts. But the Carrigans have more hope now, as things are break better for them all along the line. On the other hand, the White-hosed stars have been jumping the bumps more or less of late. They seem to have snapped a bit under the strain. Let the depression last through the coming Boston invasion and perhaps that six and a half game margin of the Mackmen will shrink a trifle before the teams return East.

Seems like the Athletics never would stop, though. They took their twelfth in a row yesterday and buried the Tigers under an avalanche of base hits. Incidently it was the third successive job for Jennings and Co., and just about puts the crusher on the Detroit hopes.

Unless something change quickly the Red Sox and the Senators will soon be left by themselves to haul back the champions. That present Eastern invasion of the West is proving rather disastrous to the home outfits. Athletics and Red Sox to date have cleaned up easily, the Senators have the edge on the Browns, while the White Sox by the most desparate kind of fighting have managed to get just an even break with Chance's Yanks.

If this continues, there's likely to be very little straightening out in the American League race before the middle of August. At that time the Easterners start swapping punches one with another. Then, and not until then, let's start writing epitaphs.

Jack Sullivan Enters National Regatta

Jack Sullivan, star oarsman of the St. Alphonsus Boat Club, has sent his entry to the national rowing regatta, which will be held at 1st Dorchester, August 11. He is entered in the intermediate singles and expects to make a fine showing. Sullivan has put in a lot of practice rowing the past few weeks and is already in fine shape for a hard race.

RACING PROGRAM.

Sprint match—Moretti vs. Carman.

Motor-paced race, 20 miles—Moran, Hitten, Madono.

Tandem race—Connolly and Drohack vs. Herbert and Barry.

Two-mile amateur handicap—Australian pursuit race for professionals, five-mile open for amateurs, one-mile invitation for amateurs and one-mile professional.

Caesar Moretti, bike champion of Italy, will make his first appearance at the Revere cycle track tonight when he meets Frank Cavanaugh, the fresh titlist, in a special sprint match race, best two in three heats.

The other end of the big double feature offering will bring together Jimmy Moran, Vincent Madono and Worth Mitten in a twenty-mile motor paced race. The regular list of amateur and professional events will go to make up the program.

Moretti is considered one of the greatest sprinters ever developed in Italy. In his few years of riding this country he has cleaned up some of the best professionals at Newark and Brighton Beach.

Cavanaugh's ability is well known at the Beach and he can be relied upon to give his opponent a hard battle.

Madono, the diminutive Providence youngster who did so well in a five-mile paced race last Tuesday night, will be given a chance to show his worth over a longer route this evening when he tackles Moran and Mitten. Madono is the best recruit that has broken into the paced game at Revere in years. He is a big favorite with the "fans" and the outcome of tonight's race is awaited with great anxiety.

As an added attraction Manager Nat Butler has arranged a tandem race between Connolly and Drohack vs. Barry and Herbert and this should be an interesting contest.

M'LOUGHLIN IS PICKED TO BEAT R. L. MURRAY

By FRED HOEY.

Maurice E. McLoughlin of San Francisco, national tennis champion, will meet Williams F. Johnston, also of San Francisco, holder of the Longwood challenge bowl in the challenge round at the Longwood Cricket Club tomorrow afternoon.

That is, this is the general opinion of those who watched McLoughlin defeat Norris Williams and who also followed the game of R. Lindsay Murray of San Francisco when the latter triumphed over Wallace Johnson yesterday.

Murray does not carry enough for McLoughlin, say the wise ones, and they figure that the champion will have an easier time disposing of his Frisco friend than he experienced in the match with Williams.

The big crowd which attended yesterday indicates another whopping crowd for this afternoon if the matches are played. The electrifying service by Murray takes the fancy of the crowd, but he has to show more than service to get away with the sojourn-haired youth this afternoon.

Considerable comment was heard at the courts yesterday on the poor back stroke of Mcloughlin, but it must be considered that he was pitted against a master of the game in young Williams. Williams is extremely effective with his back hand work and, knowing that McLoughlin's principal weakness lies in this department, played this point whenever he could.

One old tennis fan declared after the game yesterday that the match was the fastest ever seen on the Longwood courts.

McLoughlin and Murray are scheduled to play in the championship grandstand court at 4 o'clock, with Fred S. Mansfield officiating under the umbrella.

Theodore Roosevelt Pell and Karl Behr and H. H. Hackett and Fred B. Alexander, who came through the doubles tournament, will play for the Eastern doubles championship at 3:15. The winner of this match earns the right to represent the East in the national doubles championship at Newport.

The doubles match this afternoon should be a thriller. Hackett and Alexander have the generalship to pit against the dashing play of their young opponents. But then the poor weather may put a halt to the matches, in which case the tournament will be put back a day.

Hitch in Cincinnati Deal for Killifer

CINCINNATI, O., July 28.—The Reds are trying to straighten out the hitch in the deal by which they were to secure Red Killifer, slugging outfielder from the Minneapolis club of the American Association. Johnny Rawlings, Red infielder, ordered to Minneapolis as part of the deal, has jumped to the St. Louis Federals.

The Reds were to give Minneapolis Rawlings, Maurice Uhler, outfielder, and a catcher for Killifer, who is a brother of Catcher Killifer of the Phillies. Uhler left for Minneapolis Friday night and a catcher was to be supplied later. Killifer was to join the Reds in the East.

MARANVILLE to Evers to Schmidt is getting to be almost as stereotyped as the famous Tinker to Evers to Chance combination was in the days of the old Cubs. As a pivot man the Trojan is in a class all by himself, his only close rival being Eddie Collins of the Macks. Yesterday the Boston trio got busy in the ninth and put the dampers on a very threatening Cub assault.

BILL JAMES who started yesterday's game and was removed much to the surprise of the crowd, after pitching two rattling innings, was a victim of nausea. After a short rest he was reported just as well as usual.

* * *

THAT he still holds a place in the hearts of a lot of Boston fans was made very evident to Bill Sweeney last night, when he was banqueted by the Winter Leaguers. Bill had a regular old fashioned reunion, and heard a whole lot of nice things said about himself.

* * *

LOOKING back, it seems one of the games credited James on the Braves' recent road trip really belongs to the record of Rudolph. On Monday, July 15, Richard relieved James in the seventh inning out at St. Louis. When Dick appeared on the scene Boston was ahead, but the Cards tied it up in the ninth. As the Braves won out in the twelfth, however, Rudolph should by given the win. This would make his road record four wins and no losses.

* * *

ACCORDING to the reports that came from the South during the Spring, Hackett, the Macon outfielder, lately signed by the Browns is burdened with a very bad wing. The youngster, who is a Georgia college product, worked out with the Stallings crowd, but was let go when his arm was found lacking. The Braves sent him to Macon. Except for the poor whip, the chap is said to be a mighty classy ball tosser.

* * *

PRESIDENT GAFFNEY of the Braves who came over from New York Saturday to welcome the tribe home, is due to report again today. He returned to the Big Town Saturday night, but announced his intention of returning today accompanied by Mrs. Gaffney, before leaving. The winning streak of his pupils has made him an out and out fan.

* * *

THOUGH he has never been put in the book as an especially heavy player, Heinie Zinn pulled one yesterday that looked mighty nifty and cut off one possible Brave counter. With Connolly on second in the first and one out the Cub slugger scooped up Schmidt's roller and made a beautiful bluff to throw to Brat. Connelly fell for it and was easily tagged out standing up.

* * *

PIERCE got out of a mighty tight hole in the second yesterday. Just because Mann was a bit too anxious to reach the platter, Leslie was on third and the corners were crowded when the Cub southpaw was introduced. Catcher, vice Devore, slapped a healthy fly to right and should really be credited with a sacrifice, but Mann left the difficult corner before the ball was caught and was accordingly doubled up. His slip was so apparent that not a Brave uttered a word of protest.

LEST the swatting performances of Tris Speaker be forgotten too readily, take a glance at what the Red Sox star has accomplished with the bingleroo in the last week or so. Here are the figures:

July 20	4	0	0
July 21	5	0	1
July 22	4	1	*

July 25	4	2	3
July 26	3	1	2
July 27	4	1	1

Which is hitting for an average of .500. And more than half the total figure represents home runs, nine doubles and a triple being included in the list.

BESIDES leading all the National League pitchers, quite well known authority of Mathewson, holds the front in another line. He has allowed more safe hits than any other hurler in captivity this season. It's a funny combination, but shows up Matty's wonderful power. Tom, Dick or Harry, or even Hub Perdue, can hit when nobody's on. But in tight places, it's an entirely different story.

Halpin to Manage the Olympic Team

NEW YORK, July 28.—In preparation for the Olympic games at Berlin, Germany, in 1916, the executive committee of the American Olympic committee met at the New York Athletic Club and the first action taken was the unanimous election of Mathew P. Halpin of the local club, as manager of the American athletic team for the fifth time.

James E. Sullivan, one of the American representatives who attended the recent international meetings, said accommodations for the American team are being secured in hotels and houses near the Stadium. Among those present were Alfred J. Hall, Jr., of Boston, president of the Amateur Athletic Union.

Tom McNamara Wins.

ROCKLAND, Me., July 28.—Tom McNamara, the Boston professional, and Sunny Baker of New York, defeated Tim Carroll, the local professional, and Charles W. Baker of New York, 2 up, in an exhibition 18-hole game over the Samoset Hotel links.

PREPARE YACHT VANITIE FOR TRIAL RACES

NEW YORK, July 28.—Alexander Smith Cochrane's Vanitie was hauled out on wood on McClure's marine railway at City Island to have her bronze underbody burnished for the next series of cup trials.

The yacht had been in the water for more than three weeks without a cleaning, and it was expected that her plates would be heavily coated with tarnish below the waterline. On the contrary, Captain Harry Haff found her in remarkably good condition, the discoloration due to the action of salt water being less than on previous occasions.

The crew will go to work scraping the hull with steel wool today and the yacht will slip back into the water at high tide tomorrow afternoon.

That will give Captain Haff just enough time to get everything in readiness for the rendezvous of the New York Yacht Club fleet at Glen Cove on Thursday. The Resolute will tow down from Bristol for the rendezvous, and the pair will race Friday in the first run of the Summer cruise to Smithtown Bay.

A special course of thirty-five miles has been laid out for the cup yachts, while the rest of the fleet will go straight to Smithtown.

Vanitie and Resolute will cross the sound to a mark off Penfield reef, and then turn, finishing off Crane Neck Point at the entrance of Smithtown Bay.

Resolute in Shape for New Race Series

BRISTOL, R. I., July 28.—The cup class sloop Resolute, which has been in marine railway for overhauling in preparation for the New York Yacht Club races, was floated today and was said to be in excellent condition. She was officially measured by Harold W. Webb of the New York Yacht Club, but it is believed there will be no change in her rating. She will leave tomorrow for Glen Cove.

Fultz to be Referee.

H. W. Taylor, secretary of the American intercollegiate football rules committee, announces that David L. Fultz of Brown and the president of the Baseball Players' Fraternity has been selected as referee; Mike Thompson as umpire and Louis Hinkey, the old Yale end, as head linesman for the football game between Syracuse and Carlisle to be played at Buffalo October 31.

Travis in Fine Form.

MANCHESTER, Vt., July 28.—Walter J. Travis appeared at his best at Ekwanok when paired with George H. Crocker, of The Country Club, Brookline. He made a round of seventy-two with Crocker assisting, so that the best ball score was a sixty-nine, giving them a victory of 3 and 2 over H. K. Kerr of South Shore and C. H. Gardner of Ekwanok. Fred Herreshoff and F. A. Mottin beat B. Warren Corkran and D. Clark Corkran, both of Baltimore, by 3 up and 2 to play.

Announce Program of Newport Tennis

NEW YORK, July 28.—Edwin F. Torrey, secretary of the United States National Lawn Tennis Association, announced the program for the annual all-comers' championship tournament. The meeting will be held on the Casino courts, Newport, R. I., and will include singles, the challenge match of the championship doubles and the interscholastic National finals.

Foreign players in this country for the Davis Cup matches may compete only in the singles, according to a decision of the executive committee. Play will begin August 24 and continue through the next week.

The challenge match in the doubles in which Maurice E. McLoughlin and Thomas C. Bundy will play against the winners of the East-West-Southwest-and-Pacific Coast series, will be decided on August 25. The interscholastic championship contest will begin MANNHEIM, July 28.—In the sixth round of the international chess tournament, Bogoljubow, Breyer, Tarrasch, Fahrni, John and Janowski defeated Carlo, Flamberg, Post, Duras, Tartakawer and Alechine, respectively. Drawn games were recorded between Mieses and Krueger, Videmar and Marshall and Reti and Spielmann.

The leading score: Spielmann, 5; Alechine and Videmar, each 4½; Bogoljubow and Reti, each 4; Janowski, Marshall and Tarrasch, each 3½.

BASEBALL NEWS AND NOTES

THE SERIES IN THE FEDERAL LEAGUE between the Pittsburgh and Rockets, now finished, had exceptional features. One game ended in a shutout and one made four of the nine games played. Two of these games of three to a row ran marathon. Two of those latter games represented twenty-five innings of baseball on one afternoon.

* * *

HINNIE SCHULZ, THE FORMER YANKEE, is having a hard time getting over a winner in the Federal League. In four games with Buffalo, two of which he started but didn't finish, his team has been beaten in all four.

* * *

BABE MARQUARDT'S WORK MAY BE uneven, but he gave a rare exhibition of effectiveness in the Federal League season, holding the Reds to twelve hits, seven runs, fanning and beating them, then holding the Reds to two hits and beating them.

* * *

CONSIDERING HIS GOOD PITCHING against the White Sox, Jack Warhop has a tough time beating them. On May 29 he held them to six hits and lost, 1 to 0; on July 5 he held them to three hits and the game was a tie, 1 to 1; on July 20 he held them to five hits in thirteen innings and lost, 1 to 0. The New Yorkers have defeated Chesbro 5 to 0 games to the White Sox, Fisher pitched the one in which Warhop wasn't defeated.

Ten-Year Contract for Coach Courtney

ITHACA, N. Y., July 28.—Charles E. Courtney, coach of the Cornell crews for the last thirty years, whose contract still has two years to run, is about to sign a contract for ten more years, at a greatly increased salary rate, according to reports here.

Courtney last year announced that in 1916, when his present contract ran out, he would retire as coach and would be connected with Cornell rowing only in an advisory capacity. The reason for his change of mind is said to be due almost entirely to the result of the race on the Hudson last June, which was won by Columbia.

Johnson to Pitch for Feds Thursday

PITTSBURGH, July 28.—Lawyers representing the Cincinnati National League Baseball club sought an injunction restraining Pitcher George ("Indian") Johnson from pitching in the present series here between the Kansas City and local Federal League teams. Johnson recently jumped from the Cincinnati National club to the Kansas City team. He was scheduled to pitch, but Federal League counsel secured Judge Sterringer that Johnson would not play again until Thursday, the date set for the hearing on the injunction.

CHAPTER XI.

A KINDLY Providence seems to have decreed that when one would feel justified in sitting down to nurse a grudge or a grievance, there are details which demand one's time and thought and leave scant leisure for introspection or self-pity.

Such was the case on the afternoon on which Edith Hale received Tom Morton's first telegram. It was Constance who reminded her that there was something to be done, and that quickly.

"You know," the older girl said, "that we must tell aunt that Tom cannot be here and consult with her as to whom we shall invite to sit in his place. It is late now to secure an eligible man."

"I don't care who comes now," Edith complained. Nevertheless, she arose from the bed where she had been lying and accompanied Constance to Mrs. Hale's room. Here was held a consultation which resulted in Edith's telephoning to various bachelors of her acquaintance in the hope that one of them would be disengaged for the evening.

At last one was found who said that he would be delighted to take the absent guest's place—"even as a stop-gap, for he had been invited to a dinner at such a home was an honor always."

This graceful speech brought a happier look into Edith's eyes, though her mood was still less buoyant than it had been earlier in the day, and she cherished in the bottom of her heart a slight sensation of resentment toward her betrothed. She was almost ashamed to acknowledge this, for it was evident that her mother and cousin felt nothing but sympathy for the man who could not be present at his own engagement dinner.

"Of course we will not announce the engagement until dear Tom arrives," Mrs. Hale remarked. "As Mr. Daxton is to take Tom's place at the table, I suppose he will sit by me at dinner—won't he?"

"Yes, I think so," replied Edith. Then she flushed consciously. "And," she continued, "I believe I want Ralph to sit by me, after all. You don't mind, Connie, do you?"

"Why should I mind?" parried Constance. She was sure that pique was at the root of Edith's decision. Edith herself hurried on to explain her change of position.

"You see," she said, "when I told you last night that I would prefer that someone else should take me in to dinner I expected that the engagement would be announced while we were still at table, and it would be easier for me to have a stranger to talk to then. But now I don't care. Ralph may sit by me."

SPIRITS ROSE AGAIN

This matter arranged, her spirits rose again and she chatted brightly and happily of having some music and dancing during the evening to detain the guests until Tom should arrive.

"You are always so good about playing for our dancing, Connie," she said with a little laugh. "After all, Tom's not being here to dinner will make our friends think that there is nothing between him and me." The surprise will be all the greater when they do know. Perhaps, in spite of my bliss, it is turning out for the best."

Throwing an arm about Constance's waist, she waltzed her the length of the great hall and back, then dropped down upon the piano stool and began to play a little accompaniment to the words of an old nursery song, singing it in her sweet girlish voice:

"Bobby Shafto's gone to sea,
Silver buckles on his knee;
He'll come back and marry me;
Pretty Bobby Shafto!"

"He hasn't really gone to sea," she laughed, springing up from her seat and kissing Constance, who stood near her, "but he'll come back and marry me, nevertheless."

Her mother eyed her affectionately, yet slightly puzzled by the child's many changes of manner.

"I declare, Angelina," the elderly woman said, "you are today what the Scotch call 'fey.' I don't know when I have seen you so gay."

"Oh, well," said Edith, bestowing a light kiss on her mother's gray hair, "I wasn't gay a while ago when Tom's message came; but now I see I was silly to be hurt. It's well that ends well, and since he will surely be here soon after dinner it's all right. You see, we don't dine until half-past seven, and we will be easily two hours at the table, and as will get here by 10 o'clock. So I've just chosen to be happy and not spend time regretting what can't be helped."

"That's sensible, dearie," her mother approved. "It's harder on Tom, you know, than on any one else. But a business man's time is never his own."

ANOTHER TELEGRAM

Mrs. Hale, Constance and Edith were still talking in the drawing-room when the maid appeared at the door with the 5 o'clock tea tray. Mr. Hale, who had just come out from town, joined the group, and in spite of his declaration that he "really didn't care a bit for tea," accepted a cup of it and drank it with an avidity that belied his words.

Edith was laughing at him and teasing him for his inconsistency when, for the second time that afternoon, a maid appeared with a yellow envelope and said, as before, "A telegram for you, Miss Edith."

For a moment all the blood seemed to ebb from Edith Hale's face as she read the message and handed it to her father.

"You may read it to the others," she said dully. Turning to Constance she looked at her almost accusingly. "You may remember," she said slowly, "how sure you were that Tom would not fail me again. You see you were wrong."

As her father read the message aloud she stood listening as if she had not known its contents before.

Then, before anyone could speak a word of sympathy to her, she fled from the room and upstairs.

(To Be Continued.)

Their Married Life

Helen Meets Some People Who Do Not Quite Win Warren's Approval.

HELEN was sitting on the veranda of the Seabreeze Hotel with a cool wind from the ocean blowing the paper that she was reading almost out of her hands. As far as she could see the water stretched far and wide. The hotel was an old one, but it seemed to be very well kept and was situated right on the bay.

It was a typical seaside Summer resort, but the town itself was fascinating to Helen, who had spent all the preceding afternoon exploring its quaint, crooked streets where the people walked in the street with vehicles of all kinds, and all the stores were built along one street like a series of bazaars.

As she put down the paper with a little sigh of content a woman came out and sat down in a chair near her. A large woman with a huge blonde coiffure and an elaborate morning costume of white crepe de chine. She looked at Helen out of the corner of her eye as though to size her up before speaking and then finally remarked languidly.

"Is this your first visit here? I noticed you and your husband in the dining room and wondered how you liked the place."

Helen, only too glad to have another woman to talk to, smiled as she turned slightly in the chair.

"Yes, this is our first visit.

THE LOCATION IS PRAISED

"Yes, it is a nice place. I'm sure you will like it. The meals at this hotel are atrocious, but the location is so good that people come here any way. Of course the society is nothing unless you happen to know some of the cottagers. They run everything on the island."

Carrie had told Helen the same thing, but Warren had laughed at the idea.

"You see, the cottagers run the country club," the stout woman went on, "and they charge a dreadful price for an outsider who wants to belong for the Summer. And even then they are not over cordial; they give a woman an idea that she is not wanted unless she can present formidable

"You really can't blame them for that in a way," ventured Helen.

"Do you care for bathing?" she said stiffly, changing the subject abruptly, and drawing her lace ruffles up from the wooden floor where they had been dragging ever since she had sat down.

"Oh, yes, my husband is the one, but I haven't a bathing suit with me. You see we are here only for the week and looking things over. I spent all yesterday afternoon down town; isn't it a funny toy town? I really couldn't help thinking so all the while I was there."

"Yes, I suppose the place would appeal to a new comer. I don't like walking about in the heat over much myself, so I very rarely go down town. Most of the cottagers have machines, the country club is so far out that it is really necessary unless you don't mind riding in an omnibus bus. They run those out as far as the club. There comes my husband. I don't believe I know your name Mrs."

INTRODUCES HER HUSBAND

"Curtis," supplied Helen.

"This is Mrs. Curtis, Dick," said the stout woman without rising.

"My husband, Mr. Raymond," and Helen bowed to a stout, rather jolly faced little man, whom she felt immediately a great deal better than she did his wife.

"I have been telling Mrs. Curtis about the place, Dick, she has never been here before."

"Suppose we stroll down to the beach," suggested Mrs. Raymond. "Then you can meet your husband, Mrs. Curtis, and walk back with him."

Helen hated to say that she didn't feel like going for fear the Raymonds might think she didn't care to go, so she got up readily and walked to the end of the veranda, followed by Mrs. Raymond.

A moment later they were all three making their way along the tiny crowded boardwalk toward the bath houses.

Perhaps she would meet some cottagers later on who might make it pleasant for her. She devoutly hoped that Mrs. Raymond would not consider it her duty to personally see that she enjoyed her first stay at the place.

"The water is rough this morning. Looks almost like a surf," said Mr. Raymond, as they paused a moment by the rail and looked out. It was late, and the beach was almost deserted. Helen looked around to see if she could find Warren, but he was not there. He must have gone in, she thought to herself.

"There he is," waving her hand to a man who was just emerging from the group of bathhouses—"there's no husband now." And then, as Warren walked forward to meet them:

"How was the water, dear! Did you have a nice swim?"

Warren's eyes showed plainly that he was wondering where Helen picked up the Raymonds, but he bowed politely as Helen said:

"This is Mrs. Raymond, dear. She has been very kind about telling me the ins and outs of the place. Mr. Raymond, my husband, Mr. Curtis."

"Some bathing you have here," said Warren genially, as they all turned and walked toward the hotel. The bath had put him in a good humor and even a strange couple, with a plainly uninteresting woman, could not make him growl just then.

"Yes," said Mr. Raymond, who had been walking ahead with Helen, "this salt water bathing certainly does put the stuff in you all right. I keep telling Mrs. Raymond that she misses a lot not going in the water. Of course, you take, Mrs. Curtis," turning back to Helen.

"Yes, I love the water. Why don't you bathe, Mrs. Raymond? I don't see how you can resist such bathing as they have up here."

"Oh, I don't know; there's so much trouble attached that I never thought it paid, and then I have left off for so long it seems like a nuisance to get all my bathing paraphernalia together when we go away for the Summer."

They had reached the hotel and Helen followed Warren and Mrs. Raymond's plump back into the exchange.

"WHERE DID YOU PICK THEM UP?"

"I left the papers at the desk, dear, if you want them. I didn't know whether you had looked over them or not."

"Read them before you came down this morning; we won't bother with them; come on, here's the key."

Helen nodded smilingly at Mrs. Raymond as Warren handed her into the elevator.

"Where on earth did you pick her up?" he ejaculated as soon as they were alone.

"Oh, Warren, I knew you wouldn't like her, but she came to me while I was sitting on the porch and I couldn't snub her. She seems to have a regular grudge against cottagers, because she did nothing but talk about how rude they were to all the hotel people."

"Huh, she's the typical hotel gossip for you; hope you fight shy of her if we decide to come up here for my vacation."

Another incident in this very human story will soon appear on this page.

The Diary of a Bachelor

By MAX

JULY 7.—This is the first Summer Manette has ever spent in the city, and when I see how pale and languid the hot days have made her appreciate what tortures the little children of the tenements must endure when Summer blazes down on them. If I ever retrieve my fortune I shall devote one-tenth of my money to giving the children of the poor an idea that Summer is a holiday—not a holocaust.

Last Thursday was an almost unendurable day. The heat was infernal and the humidity brooded over the city like a heavy cloud of steam from a tea kettle that was trying at leaving to boil too long. I had all of Barrow's personal affairs to attend to, and several little deals of my own claimed for my attention. In addition I had to suffer the coolness that Marian Church has shown me ever since I mingled affairs so badly at Cambridge. Rex Farnham has been in town, and I suppose the contract of his entire and whole-hearted devotion has not made my reputation for gallantry any greater.

When I left the office at 6 Rex was just helping Maid Marian into her car.

"Jump in with us, Max, old man," he called. "It's much too hot for a subway ride to be a joy, so s'pose we three go for a little joy ride to cool off."

AN INSPIRATION

On the way uptown a glorious inspiration came to Rex. He asked me to bring Manette and join him and Maid Marian and her mother to a little ride they had planned for the Fourth. Pride might have prevented my accepting, even though I had sad memories of the lonely day I had endured on the 30th of May—but I had not the heart to deprive Manette of a holiday in the country or to endure the thought of Marian and Rex off for the day together!

I was not quite sure that Marian wanted me. But that only seemed to make it more important that I go. Diary, old friend, you may as well know the worst at once. I am miserably jealous of Rex Farnham!

The car came for us before 9. Maid Marian was in town with Rex, who drives in the same charmingly easy-going, reckless manner that he does all things. Even in a long linen duster and a plain little black hat, Marian looked daintily, feminingly alluring.

Manette and I piled into the tonneau with Mrs. Church, who has a sweet, repressed, faded prettiness that shows just how Marian comes by her little fine-lady manner.

We drove out into the country, where we picked up some friends of Farnham, and all of us dined at a hotel. One of them had a pretty young sister visiting him, and when we strolled around a beautiful wild path along the banks of the river, she consoled me a bit for Maid Marian's defection.

A REALIZATION

Marian and Manette struck up a quick little friendship of the warmly intimate sort that young girl things so often feel for each other, and my fifteen-year-old golden-haired niece seemed to be holding her own in the court that surrounded pretty Marian. I had never before realized how near my little Manette is to womanhood.

"Say, Max, the kid's all right!" laughed Rex, as we strolled off together to get the car. "Did you see those young fellows flocking around her?"

"That was only because Miss Church was sweet and tactful and shared her triumphs with the child—for that is all Manette is, Rex, a child of fifteen."

"She looks seventeen, Max, and she is a little beauty and she shows class. I think I'll ask her to ride back in the driver's seat with me. It'll make little Church jealous, and I might as well begin to get solid with Manette against the day when she makes her debut and is a belle, I'm only thirty, Max—he'd you like to have me for a nephew three or four years from now?"

"Rex, don't talk like a clown! Manette is a baby—a mere baby, and I don't want her to wake up to her beauty and power for years to come. I'm going to try to keep her a child as long as I can."

He laughed easily—and there was no way for his guest to impress Rex Farnham with what an all-fired cad he was.

I only said coldly: "You arranged this party, Farnham, and I am glad that it gave Manette a chance to meet a fine little soldier in the army of women who work. I'm delighted the two girls like each other."

"Don't preach, Max. We leave it for college freshmen and dotards of seventy to marry stenographers."

Manette did ride back on the front seat. She confided to me later that she thought Mr. Farnham the handsomest thing! And she asked if we couldn't invite Miss Church and her mother to dinner some Sunday. I answered that I'd see.

I feel that I'd like to warn Maid Marian against Rex Farnham. But who is to warn her against me? Heaven help us—are we all snobs?

(In the next instalment Josephine tells her story and throws herself on Max's mercy.)

Quite Right

"Wretch!" exclaimed his wife. "Show me that letter."

"What letter?" replied the innocent-looking husband.

"The one in your hand. It's from a woman. I can see by the writing, and you turned pale when you saw it."

"Yes. Here it is. It's your dressmaker's bill."

The Manicure Lady

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

"WILFRED has got a new hunch on the poetry game," said the Manicure Lady. "He wrote three sad poems a little while ago and sent them to a magazine that prints some of his best things when they need fillers. The editor sent the pieces back and wrote Wilfred a letter. He said that he didn't have any room in his magazine for sad poetry, but that if Wilfred wanted to write some nice, sunshiny poems he could use them. The editor told Wilfred in the letter that there was some money in funny, sunshiny stuff, but that sad poetry was a drug on the market."

"I thought all of Wilfred's poetry was pretty sad," said the Head Barber.

"It is, I guess," admitted the Manicure Lady, "but anyhow, poor brother is all worked up now on his new experiment. He was feeling kind of sad when he sent the poems come back, and he told us up to the house that as soon as he could get in a cheerful frame of mind he would go to the sunshine verses.

"He wanted to borrow five dollars from father to make him feel sunshiny, but the old gent was looking out of the window. He told Wilfred that if he wanted to get sunny he could go in the library and sample some of father's best, but Wilfred tried that once and found that he wasn't enough of a hero to drink what father likes, so he just waited and waited till his mind got to bubbling. Last night he was in pretty good form, for him, and here is one of the happy poems he wrote:

"The sweetest thing in all this world
Is sunshine in the Summer.
It has a cheering effect on me
Like an order gave to a drummer.
It brings the blades of grass high up
And keeps the green things growing.
If it always shined, where they would stop
I have no definite way of knowing.

"The human soul needs sunshine, too,
To keep it from rusting and moulding.
So it seems to me that I and you
Should refrain from frowns and scolding.
So scatter sunshine everywhere
When to you a chance does come,
And you will then feel free from care
And not like a poor old bum."

"I don't think he can sell that stuff to any magazine," declared the Head Barber.

"I don't know, George," replied the Manicure Lady, "but Wilfred always seems to have great faith in magazines, somehow. He says they have encouraged him more than newspapers."

"I don't think your brother needs no encouragement," said the Head Barber. "What he needs after writing rhymes like the one you just read is a few quiet months down on the island."

Bargains in Titles

MANY swindles in titles are made possible by the fact that foreign countries, although they do not openly advertise their readiness to do business with those who aspire to affix a handle to their names, carry on, in a quiet manner, a considerable trade in titles.

Some time ago a great sensation was caused in the Hungarian Diet by the vigorous indictment of Franz Kossuth, the son of the famous patriot, who exposed the fact that the government had raised $1,450,000 for its political campaign fund by selling titles and orders, several wealthy men having been made barons will decorations bestowed upon them in return for cash payments of $100,000.

Italy will make you a prince or a duke for $5,000, and a marquis for $2,500, while the title of count will cost you $2,250 and that of baron $1,250.

The widespread traffic done in titles may be gathered from the fact that a German firm, trading in Sweden, sends out a circular marked "Private and confidential," offering to secure any orders and decorations required at

EUROPEAN WAR WILL PARALYZE BUSINESS HERE

By B. C. FORBES.

Let no one imagine the opening wide of hell-gates in Europe would "help America."

War is destruction. Destruction does not make wealth; it destroys it.

"War would send our wheat up 25 cents a bushel," remarked one unthinking fellow. "It would be a fine thing for this country." He forgot that if wheat rose 25 cents a bushel every poor family in the United States would have to pay more for every loaf of bread it consumed.

Were all the great European Powers drawn into unthinkable bloodshed, instead of America benefiting, financial conditions here would be demoralized and the credit facilities of every business concern would be curtailed.

* * *

True, our foodstuffs would soar, but Americans would have to pay the exorbitant prices. There would also be a feverish demand for certain classes of our merchandise, and this would produce pseudo-booms in some lines.

* * *

But the large effect would not be healthy, and the aftermath would be most unpleasant.

* * *

A prostrate Europe would not mean a flourishing America.

* * *

A death-grapple between Germany, Austria and Italy on one side and Britain, France and Russia on the other would annihilate hundreds of thousands of bread-earners and would cost perhaps twenty billion dollars—$20,000,000,000, twenty thousand millions.

* * *

Civilization would be set back at least a quarter of a century.

* * *

Yesterday's flurry paralyzed banking operations between America and Europe, as I explain in another article describing the day's financial events. Over $10,000,000 of American gold will be rushed to Europe today, bringing the half year's consignments to almost $100,000,000. How much would actual war on a colossal scale drain from us?

* * *

Out of evil sometimes comes good. The present episode should prove an attention to the dire necessity of upbuilding our American merchant marine. Were all Europe to become involved in war, the United States would have no ships worth speaking of to carry supplies overseas. A war risk was demanded yesterday afternoon on gold shipments, as the steamers carrying the metal are all European-owned. The $10,000,000 going today is in a German ship, which would be seized by England should a general conflagration start before the week ends.

Will our government, so ready to harass business, turn its attention to doing something tangible to foster-ing this vital arm of our commerce?

* * *

The following statements on the effect of a European war upon American interests were received for the Hearst newspapers yesterday:

Frank A. Vanderlip, president of the National City Bank, said:

"I cannot believe that any great destruction of property would ever be involved in a European war can be of advantage to the United States. It would be of very grave harm to the increased demand for American products that would result would be as nothing compared with the disastrous effect it would have on the business life of the whole world. That would be reflected right back to us."

* * *

A. Barton Hepburn, chairman of the Chase National Bank, said:

"While nobody wants a general European war and everybody would deplore it, if there is to be one it should not happen at a better time for this country for the reason that we have a large crops. There is a crop shortage generally throughout Europe and the foreigners would have to buy food products from us. Their purchases of American products would take care of the International balance of trade and put us on 'Easy Street' with reference to the rest of the world.

"A war could not precipitate a panic here or anything like it, for conditions have been such that most that the foreigners have sold their securities, bonds and other financial stocks and have depleted their holdings."

William A. Read, the well-known investment banker, said:

"I believe the first effects in the United States of a general European war would be very depressing, because the foreigners would sell everything of ours they had. For a while there would be a scramble for all our cereals and our manufactures, but it must be remembered that war does not result in prosperity to good to anybody. A general European war would impoverish the countries involved and would react disastrously on us. It might, however, help to build up our merchant marine in the course of time."

No, my friends, let us pray for peace, not war.

LATEST STOCK MARKETS

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks indicated this afternoon that the war peril in Europe has grown greater. Recessions were greater than early in the morning. Among those in New York were Atchison 2½, pf. 2, Can. Pacific 2, Canadian Pacific 2¾, Southern Pacific 2¾, Reading, ex-dividend, 2¾, Lehigh Valley 2, New Haven 1¾, American Telephone 1¾, American Can 1, Steel 2¾, Amalgamated 2¾, American Smelting 2¾, Northern Pacific 1¾, Baltimore & Ohio 1¾, Union Pacific 2¾, New York Central 1¾ and Texas Co. 2¾.

In Boston trading was broader and more active than usual. Declines here included New Haven 1¾, Elevated 2½, United Fruit ½, Shoe ¾, American Telephone 1, Butte & Superior 2, Calumet & Arizona 1¾, Granby 2, Alaska Gold ½, North Butte ¾, Mohawk ¼ and Copper Range ¾.

MARKETS OPENED WEAKER.

Markets were weaker at the opening, although losses did not average quite as large as at the start yesterday. There was continuation of foreign selling in New York. Trading was brisk there, first hour transactions totalling around 150,000 shares, and for the morning 350,000. There was no rush to sell in the morning and in the noon hour recessions took the list to a still lower level. Cable reports that the British government had failed to induce Germany to take part in mediation proposals to prevent war between Austria and Servia increased the war scare, but the market is said by some to support from investors who bought standard stocks in the belief that there will be no general conflict and that prices are at about the lowest point they will reach. At least liquidation is less than panicky sale would warrant. This indicates, it is assumed, that stocks are now owned by people who will not be forced by the public.

MORE GOLD SHIPMENTS.

The exportation of gold continues on a large scale. A German ship sailed from New York for Europe today with $10,000,000 aboard, the largest amount ever carried by one vessel. Additional engagements up to noon today totalled $3,400,000 and it was understood that it will all go tomorrow. Kidder, Peabody & Co. are sending $1,500,000 of this amount. Their shipments are for cash bought or engaged on the present movement now totals $16,500,000. The total since January 1 is 1914, is $96,300,000. There is likelihood of an advance in money rates all over the world.

EASTERN RATE CASE IGNORED.

The usual announcement came from Washington: "No decision will be rendered in the Eastern rate case today." But that matter was ignored. Fear that all Europe will become a battlefield swamped all other considerations. It is said that within the country have withstood such a bear factor as has caused the closing of bourses in Europe and many here think prices have discounted the most unfavorable rate decision and everything else.

In the late forenoon the most interesting feature in the New York market was selling by foreigners. It was remarked if the movement keeps up it will mean that various Europe will be bare of American stocks. By the time foreigners get ready to repurchase prices will probably be far above the present level. The way the issues offered by foreigners has been absorbed is said to indicate that large financial interests are in the market for long pull. Stocks may not be big and not the little fellows who will reap the cream of the present unprecedented harvest. Stocks may not much lower, but they are unquestionably cheap now.

WILD SCENE AT 'CHANGE.

There was a wild scene on the New York Cotton Exchange when it was announced that Austria had declared war against Servia. Prices at once fell about 12 points.

Wheat prices were closely watched today. That it had not advanced more was one of the surprises. It was claimed, that all Europe will not become belligerent. The crop is figured that a general European conflict would send prices of cereals to as high figures as were ever known.

STOCKS DOWN IN LONDON.

In the London market before those in this country opened American issues were weaker, the general slump having continued over night. There had been no change in sentiment; the market reflected the appalling war peril. It is understood that the British government is making every possible effort to confine the war to Austria and Servia, while making preparations to defend its world-wide interests in case there should be a general conflict. Great Britain has the most to lose and the least to gain of any great power in a struggle involving all European nations.

The demoralization existing on the London exchanges is said to be without panic stage. Berlin, Vienna and other Continental cities

"CHIP" ROBINSON'S DRAMATIC LIFE STORY

CHAPTER XI.

"Who so shall telle a tale after a man."—Geoffrey Chaucer.

Copper" heard Sheriff O'Donnell whitening face. He realized the arrest of "Diamond Chip" Robinson might mean to him, especially if, as the sheriff said, Robinson was desperately wounded and willing what he knew. "Copper" heard from Robinson. He believed himself shadowed by his partner. Fear wrote itself into "Copper's" face. The sheriff went out. Soon "Copper" sent for one of the jail "trusties." Then the "trusty" called the sheriff. Entering through the bars of cell "Copper" said hoarsely: "Sheriff, I'm a prosecutor. I want to talk to him privately."

The prosecutor came. Then Judge Stuart was called, with a stenographer. Declaring that he must have assurance that the murder charge against him would be reduced to manslaughter, "Copper" then gave his account of the sensational triple killing in the jewelry store. This was taken down by the stenographer. Was as follows:

"We picked out the Thompson store three or four days before the shooting. We had picked the job for September 17, but when we went into the store some people were there. We had to give it up for that day. We had decided to pull off the robbery just as early in the time as the lights are turned on. This would make our getaway easier and we wouldn't encounter so many people. Robinson had planned our escape.

"COPPER'S" CONFESSION.

"On the afternoon of September 16 we were all ready. Once we entered the store, but some people there sent us out again. We went into a saloon next door and waited. About 5:30 we returned to the store.

"Only the clerks were there. Covering them with our guns we walked them into the safety vault. I stood in the doorway holding them and Robinson frisked the showcases. I picked up a black bag in my right hand and I had a 38-calibre revolver in my left hand coat pocket. Soon 'Chippy' returned and took one of the clerks. He wanted the man to open the safe. I don't know which one of them it was.

"After they had gone one of the clerks, the big fellow G. N. Thompson, jumped on me. I tried to get my revolver out of my pocket and assisted in drawing it. But I have two fingers on my left hand and couldn't get a finger on the trigger. However, in my twisting around the gun was discharged. I saw blood on my wrist and then I fell to the floor. I don't know what happened when some one hit me.

"I tried to get up, but Chippy Robinson was the man he had taken out and returned and both stepped on Chippy stepped on my neck and found himself in the thickest of the fight.

"His gun barked five times. The first five times a man fell at each shot. The two biggest men piled on each other. The other fellow escaped a short distance away.

"I lost my hat and gun, but drew one from my pocket. I started to leave the store. Chippy right behind me. At the door a young dark-looking fellow was entering. He evidently had heard the shooting and he was afraid. He crouched to one side and, as we passed, he stepped over to the showcase.

CHANGED COATS.

"We walked across the street and went up the stairs. We met somebody coming down the stairs, but didn't know him. We entered the alley, turned to our right, crossed the street, walked up a little, then down another alley.

"In a stairway we changed coats and hats. I wore a light pair of pants and a dark coat. Chippy had a blue suit and a soft black hat. The fellow in the store is now in mine.

"We passed right through the busy part of the town, crossed the Pearl street bridge and went past the factories. We went to the Lake Shore depot, but the train had left. We were afraid of arrest. And I never got them again. In a yard near the track we counted the diamonds. We had thirty-one or thirty-four of them.

"We walked down the track about a mile and turned West. We went into a saloon on Leonard street and had a drink. We inquired about the interurban car. We separated. I went along farther. But we boarded the same car. Chippy was seated in one end, I was in the other.

"The conductor had some papers and asked us if we knew about the murder. We told him no and asked him if anyone had been arrested. He said the police had arrested half a dozen.

"We rode the interurban to Muskegon and took the night boat for Chicago. We landed there at 6 o'clock the next morning. After staying in Chicago several hours we went to Toledo.

"In Toledo we went to a rooming house run by Celia Hurley, sister of the girl I later married. We showed her some diamonds. We told her then that we had to kill three men to get the diamonds.

DIVIDED THE LOOT.

"The next morning Chippy got some tools and unmounted the diamonds. We took the big ones, also the one Chippy took from one of the men's fingers, and got $250 for them. The others we divided into two piles and drew cuts for them.

"We had sold the big ones to a pawnbroker. The ones I later got I sold to this man's brother. Chippy took the watch. I don't know what he did with it.

"I stayed around Toledo and finally married the girl who had been my wife. Then I got a tip that Halloran was down there, looking for the men who killed Detective Grand Rapids clerks. Chippy went East. I took my wife and went to my home in Kentucky.

"I had a fight with my wife one night and she went back to Toledo. I was not afraid of her. I thought she would come back to me.

"When Chippy and I were in Toledo we fixed up an alibi. So we were not afraid of arrest. And I never felt sure that, when Chippy heard I was arrested, he would come and help me. But he never came near me."

"I feel better since I have relieved my mind of the terrible and awful burden. I expect to suffer my proper punishment."

Don't Worry About an European War—YET

There Probably Won't Be Any Great European War, Perhaps, and Quite Probably No War at All

We are hearing about a great European conflagration.

Don't let the talk disturb you. It is the same talk to which you have been listening for thirty years, if you are thirty years old.

The Austrian Emperor feels bad, of course, because the heir to his throne was murdered.

But Germany, France and Russia are not going to enter upon a war that would cost ten thousand million dollars and a million lives in order to make the old Emperor feel better.

Incidentally, remember that the Kings and Emperors and the Rothschilds no longer control the question of peace or war.

There is in Germany what is known as the Social Democratic party, numbering millions of men, intelligent and determined.

That is the big, well educated party of Germany. There is another like it in France, and another in Italy.

Every member of each of those parties considers his life just as valuable as that of the Austrian Emperor's murdered relatives.

Every German Social Democrat will say to the Emperor—and the Emperor knows it—"Show me why I should be shot before you lead me to the battlefield.

"Show me and my comrades why, or we won't go."

Don't worry yet about a great European conflagration.

Millions of peasants have been kicked into intelligence in the German army.

Millions of men and women have learned to read and think since the foolish Napoleon III., led by a woman who was led by her religious advisers, hurried France, unprepared, into a stupid war.

No kings or bankers control the situation, but political leaders representing the workingmen.

It is not time yet to worry about the great war of Europe that we have so long been waiting for—and that, let us hope, we shall never see.

The Slaughter in Dublin May Prove a Parallel to the Boston Massacre

The first blood has been spilled in Ireland.

The slaughter in Dublin bears a very marked resemblance to the Boston Massacre, which was the beginning of the end of British tyranny in America.

Perhaps the British troops who fired on the Irishmen in the streets of Dublin may have been technically right, but the British troops who fired on Americans in the streets of Boston were also technically right and their officer was acquitted on his trial for manslaughter by an American jury.

Yet, history marks this massacre as the beginning of the conflict which ended in American independence. It was not so important that men had been killed in a riot as that the circumstances arising out of the demand of the people for self-government and the opposition of Great Britain to that demand had culminated in an inevitable conflict of arms in which human blood was spilled.

In this respect, the Dublin massacre is a counterpart of our own historic episode. The AMERICAN fervently hopes that it may lead to the same result, and that as the Boston Massacre marked the beginning of a successful struggle for American independence, so this massacre in Dublin may end in self-government for the Irish people.

When a branch of the human race is in travail on the eve of the birth of its self-government the whole world is interested or ought to be interested in its struggle. We cannot tell what influence upon human history events which are now transpiring in Great Britain and Ireland may have. But it is certain that the century-long demand of the Irish people for self-government cannot be postponed.

Every one who loves fair play, whether he is an Irishman or of Irish descent in America, or of any other descent, cannot fail to condemn the spirit of the British government, or of the army officers, who in one section of Ireland permit the open arming and parading of forces whose avowed intention it is to defy the government, and in another section of Ireland shoot down Irishmen who are attempting to do exactly what they saw being done in Ulster, but with this great difference, that the object of the Dublin Irishmen was to UPHOLD the government against the REBELLIOUS forces which are assembling in Ulster.

The AMERICAN quotes the statement of the Lord Mayor of Dublin; it is deeply significant, and it may become an historical protest:

> "Dublin and Ireland look with confidence to John Redmond and his colleagues to bring to justice those responsible for this shocking outrage. There must no longer be one law for a section of the Ulster people and another law for the remainder of the Irish people."

The shedding of human blood is a terrible event under any circumstances, but it is a strange fact in history that this blood sacrifice seems to be exacted so often on the altar of human liberty.

While the slaughter of Irishmen in the streets of Dublin may arouse the burning indignation of fair-minded, liberty-loving people throughout the world, yet it may be that this explosion was necessary to awake the paltering British ministry to a realization that it is impossible to palter any longer. The toll of the dead in Dublin may make Mr. Asquith and his English associates appreciate the sound political philosophy of Lowell's lines:

> "The brave make danger opportunity
> The coward, paltering with the chance sublime
> Dwarfs it to peril."

Let us hope that this is the greatest sacrifice Ireland will be required to make for her liberty. It is enough.

A NEW BOARDER AT THE BIRCHES

Hicks Corners is thrown into a high state of commotion by the arrival of the celebrated moving picture actress, Mabel Weeks. Numerous comments by the rocking chair fleet, and you just ought to see Pearl, the waitress, give Nat Bying-ton, the captain of Hope Hose, a nasty look as he escorts the actress up the walk. Poor Bungalow is in bad. He has met the lady and he's trying to figure out what to do, crawl under the table or beat it for the station. Really it's a small world after all, but it looks dark for Bill.

The Cape Cod Canal Is to Be Opened Tomorrow

Tomorrow the Cape Cod Canal will be opened for the first time to the public. The event is to be celebrated by a pageant.

We hope and believe that this canal will mean a great deal to the people of New England and to the whole nation. The canal is eight miles long, 250 feet wide at the surface and 100 feet at the bottom and 25 feet deep at low water. The tide saves it from the complication and expense of a system of locks.

It will save the commerce plying betwen New England ports and the South a distance of 70 miles. It will avoid the fogs which hover around the end of the cape. It will avoid the dangerous shoals that the vessels which round the cape must encounter. It will avoid the still more dangerous storms which in the three hundred years of our New England existence have destroyed so many hundreds of lives and wrecked so many hundreds of vessels.

The canal will shorten the ocean trip South and will make it less hazardous. It may be that it will also become a necessary part of our coast defence by shortening the distance which our hurrying warships and transports must travel in times of national emergency.

We shall watch the project with great interest and we shall lend it all the support that an enterprise like this ought to have from the New England public.

One New York statesman seems to have forgotten the Honorable "Big Tim" Sullivan's wise remark:

AFTER THE WEDDING

AN ILLUSTRATED STORY OF THE WAY A HOME WAS MADE

"That's a nice, selfish feeling to have," said Jennie

Great preparations were going on in the home of Tom and Jennie for the arrival of "the little stranger." Jennie was a changed girl now, and did not seem to think or care about always wanting to go somewhere and be amused, but was completely wrapped up in her little home and the sewing of fluffy little things for the wonderful little BOY that was expected. One day three two women friends of Jennie's stopped in and wanted her to go out with them. "Not for me," said Jennie, "I'm too happy here at home." And she showed the women the little dresses she was making.

"Huh" said one of the women, "that stuff is the bunk; now you can never have any fun, go any place or do anything, but listen to a kid squawk. Not for me; there's too much fun in the world and I don't want to miss any of it by being tied at home with children."

"That's a nice, selfish feeling to have," said Jennie. "If all the women in the world were like you, it would be a rather strange place, wouldn't it?"

"I should worry about the world," said the woman.

Jennie looked at her in open-eyed wonderment. She could not believe that anyone could be so selfish or become so hardened in their ideas of motherhood—which is the most beautiful thing in the world and the dearest thing to a GOOD woman's heart.

Mysteries of Weather Still Baffling Puzzle

Weather Bureaus and Prognosticators, for All Their Science and the Aids of Goddess of Luck, Are Still Groping in the Dark

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

"Will man ever be able to control the weather?"

Not so long as it remains a mystery to him, and a mystery it still is in spite of all the studies and all the experience of the weather bureaus and the prognosticators.

When Eve took Adam's arm and walked with him out of the Garden of Eden's gate, she first learned what damp weather means for a woman's frizzes, while Adam was probably not long in feeling the first twinges of rheumatism. The conclusion that a persistent spell of rainy and gloomy weather followed the Great Expulsion is as warranted as many others that have been drawn by learned men, because that would be a logical means of causing the offending pair to appreciate what they had lost.

If you ask a professional meteorologist why the North Atlantic seaboard has been so persistently afflicted with clouds, rain, sogginess, excessive humidity and general atmospheric gloom this Summer, he will very likely look you defiantly in the eyes and assert that you are suffering under an illusion; that the weather is all right and running its regular gait, and that you have forgotten what happened last year. Then he will discourse to you on the law of averages, and prove mathematically that, in the long run, the seasons don't vary.

All this is really a confession of ignorance. Meteorology, at present, is a science of averages and generalities. It has to deal with a subject whose elements are so shifty that nobody can surely foresee their varying combinations.

To foretell a change of weather is like foretelling the shape that a puff of smoke will take; and to account for a spell of good or bad weather is as difficult as to account for the birth and persistence of a cloud that hangs for hours in a blue sky. The general causes are known, or believed to be known, but science, to have much practical value, must master the details.

I do not mean to cast doubt upon the general usefulness of weather bureau work, but there could be no mistake concerning the bases on which it rests. When weather predictions succeed, it is because the atmosphere has settled into a state of regular action and reaction between the forces that control its phenomena, and then the weather observers can follow the course of a storm and predict its arrival at particular points as easily as a train dispatcher can trace the run of an express across the continent by simply consulting his time table.

But when the powers of the air concert a change of schedule, the scientific meteorologist is, for a time, as uncertain and upset in his calculations as the popular weather prophet, and less to be depended upon for local predictions than some wise old farmer who studies the behavior of tree frogs, earth worms, hens and chickens and other animals which seem to have a foreknowledge of nature's moods that is denied to us.

Meteorology can tell, from observations gathered widely on land and sea, what the general state of the atmosphere is during a long spell of wet or dry weather. It can also make very general predictions concerning changes likely to occur in these general states of the atmosphere, but it refuses to be held to strict account in such things. If you use an intellectual microscope you will find in its schedule what is common on railway time tables: "Subject to change without notice."

It is no wonder, then, that thousands of people have more faith in St. Swithin just now than in the Weather Bureau. Of St. Swithin's Day, the old saw says:

"St. Swithin's Day, if thou dost rain,
For forty days it will remain.
St. Swithin's Day, if thou be fair,
For forty days 'twill rain na mair."

This Scotch-English weather saint has his compeers in other countries. In France it is St. Medard, the state of whose day is supposed to govern the Summer weather for forty days after. All over the world there are similar superstitions, which are superstitions only in their form, for there can be no doubt that they are based on the results of long-continued experience. If the type of weather prevailing about the time of the occurrence of one of these days really does, upon the whole, continue for several weeks, it must be because a general law is in operation tending to produce a stagnation in the state of the atmosphere.

St. Swithin's Day occurs between three and four weeks after the Summer solstice, and it is well known that, by that time, the character of the season has generally become settled, and is not liable to be much changed until the sun has sunk so far toward the Autumnal equinox that the heat received by the earth during the daytime becomes so much less than that radiated at night that a general atmospheric change of state in the northern hemisphere must necessarily occur.

We need a meteorological Newton; but if we had one is it certain that we should be any happier? Newton established the law of gravitation, but now there is much dissatisfaction because we don't know what gravitation is; Newton could only tells us what it does.

Hints for Our Young Girls

By MRS. FRANK LEARNED

GIRLS have an instinctive desire for knowledge of the mysteries. Intelligent girls realize that there can be no improvement in character without seeing our imperfections and trying to remedy them.

The mistakes which girls make are often from ignorance, thoughtlessness or from having been thrown with girls and boys who are not striving for the fine graces of life and who pretend to have an aggressive sort of indifference to them, although conscience calls them to follow better ideals.

There are certain standards of conduct which are recognized to be of importance to those who are growing into womanhood. The world is not lenient in its judgment of those who disregard these laws.

Society requires the observance of definite lines of conduct for girls, and when these are ignored parents often get the credit of being careless and girls get the credit of being reckless in manners, intolerant of guidance.

It is to be assumed that parents consider their daughters very precious treasures, to be brought up carefully, shielded from being in a false position, and that they know a young girl's reputation is a sacred thing. Parents are sometimes strangely careless or lacking in responsibility in allowing very young girls to do what causes them to be gossiped about.

In the best social life of Eastern cities girls do not go about alone with men to evening parties, theatres or public places. In small places or in the West or South there may be differences in customs; but the rule stated is the acknowledged social law.

Where there may be modifications in custom, at least there should be a regard for dignity and propriety. If a mother cannot accompany her daughter she may be careful that she is under proper protection. It is best for a girl to be with a party of friends and that an older person should be with young people when going to theatres or public places. Many annoying and distressing complications may be avoided if simple rules are followed.

Young girls who are carefully brought up know that the presence of an older person is not a restraint but a protection, and that there is truly more freedom of mind for enjoyment in the consciousness of doing the right thing.

In extreme youth there is no doubt that unchaperoned associations between girls and boys are undesirable, and may be dangerous. No excuse can be made for parents who allow very young girls to indulge in foolish flirtations, which may seem quite harmless, but which take from a girl the natural charm and simplicity of heart and feeling which are so well worth keeping and are so important to her own happiness.

It is not to the credit of a girl if she assumes an independent, self-assertive, aggressive manner, or if she attempts to put her parents in the background by disregarding their wishes or opinions.

Men do not admire a girl who treats her parents with disrespect or who deceives them. Men look for high ideals in a girl. They know that a good daughter makes a good wife.

Another point is that men do not really like the free-and-easy girl. Although they may be amused by her they do not respect her.
